SAIGON (AP) — American Green Berets and South Vietnamese irregulars believed outnumbered 4 to 1 counted 116 enemy dead today after repelling a North Vietnamese mortar and ground attack on a U.S. Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border.

Casualties among the 500 defenders and their families at Tong Le Chou were termed moderate, meaning they were hit hard. It was not known if any of the dozen or so American advisers were casualties.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the 165th North Vietnamese Regiment, believed to number some 2,000 men, attacked the camp 54 miles northwest of Saigon early Monday and fighting raged for many hours.

In the air war, 167 missions were flown against North Vietnam Monday, including an attack on the repeatedly hit Loi Dong storage area four miles northwest of the port of Haiphong. But bad weather limited most of the attacks to the southern Panhandle.

Another F4C Phantom jet was brought down by ground fire in the Panhandle, and both crewmen were missing. It was the 338th U.S. combat plane reported lost over North Vietnam and the 38th in the past month.

Heavy automatic weapons fire by the Viet Cong brought down five helicopters near Saigon Monday. One crashed and burned, but the other four were able to limp away from the ambush and were reported repairable.

Brig. Gen. John F. Freund was wounded in the lower right leg when he ordered his own chopper down to rescue troops from one of the downed copters.

The 49-year-old commander of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade was directing an assault by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops seven miles north of the capital.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in South Vietnam, presented Freund with his first Purple Heart in 27 years of Army service. Freund and his aide, a lieutenant, were the only ones wounded as their helicopter tried to pick up two U.S. soldiers. Ground troops later made the rescue.

Three U.S. soldiers were killed and 22 wounded in fighting around the crippled helicopter.

South Vietnamese rangers, operating with the U.S. company, reported light casualties. Seven Viet Cong were killed, and the allied force reported capturing three weapons, including two U.S. carbines.

A sixth U.S. helicopter was shot down Monday while on a reconnaissance mission about 350 miles north of Saigon, but there were no casualties. Across the country, a spokesman said, other U.S. helicopters killed 17 of the enemy Monday, sank seven sampans and destroyed 97 fortified positions.

UR Presents A Strong Case

By HUGH REYNOLDS

The businessmen questioned the urban renewal men last night and reports indicate a well presented case by the much-criticized Kingston Urban Renewal Agency.

The closed meeting took place at the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. offices at 607 Broadway. It was chaired by Richard M. Kalish, a prominent local merchant, who led a delegation of Kingston Businessmen to New York City last Monday to discuss urban renewal with Charles J. Horan, assistant regional administrator for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick.

Revealed Little

A check with Kalish this morning revealed little of the meeting. His statement is as follows: "A group of interested businessmen met last night with the Kingston Urban Renewal chairman (Frank A. Reis) and its executive director (Eric Hemphill). We had a most informative, constructive meeting, during which we discussed the many phases of our UR program in Kingston."

"This meeting supplements an earlier meeting," Kalish continued, "this group had last week with Charles J. Horan and Congressman Resnick. The group now plans to study this matter and formulate plans for further action."

Reports indicate that Congressman Resnick is still insisting on the removal of all members of the urban renewal agency and also its executive director and attorney, S. James Matthews.

There Is One Exception

Resnick reportedly wants William J. Mahoney, former city Democratic chairman, to remain on the board.

The Freeman learned this week that the congressman would not compromise. The board had to go along with Hemphill and Matthews.

Kingston Soldier Listed as Missing in Action

PVT. ROBERT TUBBY

Pvt. Robert Tubby, son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tubby, 102 Clinton Avenue, who has been on duty with the harbor master handling ammunition and supplies at Saigon, has been reported missing in action since Aug. 6.

Word was received by his parents last night in a telegram from the Secretary of the Army in which he states that the 20-year-old Tubby was last seen on a gangplank leading to a pier at Saigon. The telegram states further that a search for him is in progress and that the family will be advised as soon as further word is received. Tubby, a graduate of Kingston High School and a former construction worker with Local 17, Kingston, entered service Dec. 8, 1966. Following basic training at Fort Dix, he spent a 15-day leave at the home of his parents. On May 4 he departed for his new duty assignment with the 4th Transportation Command in S. Vietnam.

In one of many letters home recently, young Tubby termed the war as "pretty rough" and told of seeing some of his buddies die about a month ago while performing the same duties he has been assigned.

Pvt. Tubby is the oldest of four Tubby youngsters. His sister, Maryann, is a recent graduate of Kingston High School and he has two younger brothers, Bruce and Tom. His sisters and brothers include William, Vincent, Audrey, Carol and Barbara.

Harlem Wants

Rat Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group from New York's Harlem, invading the House galleries to protest noisily for a federal rat control proposal, clashed with Capitol police.

At least six persons were injured in the disturbance Monday, which erupted shortly after the House adjourned a routine session.

The group entered the public galleries and—as a few remaining House members fled the floor—began shouting protests against House action last month in killing the administration's antirats bill.

But police stepped in quickly and broke up the chanting, clapping demonstration by the predominantly Negro group amid screams, curses and flying fists.

There were reports that at least four New Yorkers and two policemen suffered minor injuries during the incident, which lasted less than an hour.

Eight of the estimated 95 demonstrators were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct and released after posting $10 bond.

"Rats cause riots," the group chanted while sitting in the gallery. "We don't need a riot bill. We need a rat bill."

The House earlier passed a bill—now in the Senate—that would make it a federal crime to cross a state line with the intention of inciting a riot.

Police said one demonstrator carried a large rat in a cage.

Jesse Gray, Harlem rent strike leader who was among those arrested, said after posting bond that the group came here to "demand passage of the rat bill but in turn our heads were beaten in and we were run out of Congress."

Most of the demonstrators returned to their New York homes by special bus but a delegation was left behind to pursue the rat bill situation.

Union, Phone Firm Reach Settlement

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

It was also reported that one of the pickets working a 2 to 4 a. m. shift at the Broadway and West O'Reilly Street company building was hit by a beer can thrown from a moving car. The man was not injured.

The strike by the Communications Workers of America against the N. Y. Telephone Company is over.

Pickets that ringed the company building at Broadway and West O'Reilly Street and marched in front of the Converse Street business office have been called off the line and are currently in the process of going back to work.

25,000 linemen, truck drivers, installers and repairmen, all members of the CWA in the State-wide strike will be reporting back to their jobs as soon as possible.

Robert Smith, union representative in the Kingston area, told The Freeman that he had been in touch with Walter Hermann, a union staff member in Albany, and learned that an agreement had been reached between the company and the union and that, "I am dropping the picket lines."

Smith said that the workers should be reporting to work "at about 1 p. m. today."

Resume Negotiations

The Associated Press reported that representatives of the company and the union resumed negotiations today after a 12-hour bargaining session that began Monday night.

As the strike spread Monday, the dispatch stated, the company contended that only 65 per cent of its plant staff was involved, while the union said 95 per cent of the State's repairmen, installers, linemen and truck drivers were staying home to back demands for better protection in danger areas.

Neither side, it was reported, disputed that with the exception of some overseas calls, telephone users experienced little difficulty in reaching their neighbors or clients. Phone installations and repairs however, were virtually halted throughout the State.

The Freeman asked local union officials why a job safety clause was not included in a new contract signed, according to the company, "a few months ago," between the CWA and N. Y. Telephone, and it was admitted that the issue may have been overlooked.

The Brooklyn shooting brought the issue to a head.

Some Order Delay

Company manager Pearson released the following statement today: "We are maintaining telephone service on a satisfactory basis. Out-of-service telephones are being repaired the same day they are reported to us, in most cases."

"There is some delay in completing orders to move telephone service or to install new telephones."

"Although about 90 per cent of the local Plant Union employees are involved in the walk-out, we have augmented our force with about 40 supervisory personnel from Kingston, and our headquarters location in Albany."

"This force is more than adequate to maintain local telephone service in a satisfactory fashion."

"Operator-handled traffic, including information, intercept, and long distance calls, was normal yesterday."

The shooting of a phone booth coin operator in Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant section triggered the dispute. Union members began walking off their jobs in what was described by the company as a "wildcat strike."

Spread to Others

The strike spread from the Brooklyn Local 1101 to other locals in the city. A 6 p. m. meeting Sunday, between union and company officials, failed to meet demands and the three union presidents, James McCabe, Arthur J. Schulhoff and John J. Renck, were suspended by the company.

This made the strike a dual issue action.

Union members originally wanted installers and repairmen assigned to high crime, or ghetto, areas, to move in two-man teams.

Aiken Says Surtax To Fall Short

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken says he has been told President Johnson's war-related tax increase proposal "isn't half of what they will need. They are going to try to put off asking for the rest of it until after the election" next year.

The Vermont Republican said in an interview if the administration doesn't "listen to reason pretty soon" on Vietnam, "it will have written one of the worst chapters in American history or, indeed, in world history."

Aiken said his constituents are protesting the 10 per cent surtax on income taxes asked by Johnson Thursday to help finance mounting war costs.

The senator, second-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a persistent war policy critic, said he had been "reliably informed" that the requested tax hike was less than half of what is needed.

He said he agrees with the assessment Monday by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield that the administration is planning a further escalation of the war.

Mansfield told the Senate Monday it appeared there was going to be a further escalation of the fighting "with the costs in lives and money being borne preponderately by us."

Two Jump Bail, Joe Out $1,000

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick who provided a blank bail check for those arrested in the recent disorders in Poughkeepsie, is out $1,000.

Two men failed to appear in Poughkeepsie City Court Monday to answer disorderly conduct charges stemming from the July 28-29 disturbances. In all, 17 persons were charged with disorderly conduct and the Democratic Congressman from Ellenville provided a total of $8,500 — $500 for each person.

The men who jumped bail were identified as Noah Thomas, 39, and Willie Garrett, 22, both of Poughkeepsie. Bail was revoked by City Judge Joseph Gellert.

The congressman's Poughkeepsie office said today attempts are being made to locate the two men through friends. It was felt there had been a "misunderstanding" and the men did not know when or where they were to appear.

All others freed on bail have appeared in court and trial dates have been set. The case of Charles Green was heard Monday and Judge Gellert reserved decision until next week.

Resnick had given the blank check to Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan, July 29, after a state of emergency had been declared following two nights of violence and looting.

The congressman specified that the bail funds were to be used only for misconduct cases, not those held on burglary and weapons charges. He labeled the majority of those arrested as "bystanders, not ringleaders."

Riot-Prevention Fund Proposed by Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff and Charles H. Percy proposed today a $1 billion riot-prevention fund and wide flexibility for the President in spending it.

The Senators said the bill would require no new appropriations or additional spending. It would authorize the President to transfer up to two per cent of budgeted, nondefense spending into a neighborhood emergency fund.

Percy, R-Ill., and Ribicoff, D-Conn., said the President then could make grants to states, communities and nonprofit organizations for local efforts aimed at easing urban tensions and promoting orderly community growth.

The fund would differ from existing urban-aid programs, the senators said, in giving the President the ability to act quickly and with flexibility in response to local initiatives. Emphasis would be put, said

Ribicoff and Percy, on the concerted use of private industry and capital, civic groups and existing federal, state and local government programs.

The senators said top priority should be given to the creation of jobs, better housing and improved law enforcement.

Meanwhile Senate riot investigators appeared divided over the course of their probe, which has centered thus far on policemen, racial agitation and the federal antipoverty program.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., says testimony developed to date by the Senate Judiciary Committee's hearings convinces him there's a need to see whether government money supports "organizations that are responsible, directly or indirectly, for these riots."

But Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., are pressing for a broadened investigation to cover social and economic factors they contend lie behind urban rioting.

"We're not solving the problem just by getting bigger night sticks and faster shooting riot guns," Hart told a Newark, N.J., turnkey Monday. "You appear to be preoccupied with repressive measures."

The policeman was Leonard F. Kowalewski, president of New Jersey's Fraternal Order of Police.

3 Hours on Stand
Kowalewski insisted that people connected with the antipoverty program in Newark were involved in racial demonstrations which created the climate for five days of deadly rioting.

He spent well over three hours on the witness stand, repeatedly naming the United Community Corp., Newark's anti-poverty agency, as a source of racial unrest.

When Kennedy demanded documentation for the charges, Kowalewski replied: "My knowledge of the UCC has been limited to seeing these people picket and demonstrate."

Under further questioning, Kowalewski said he rarely left the jail during working hours.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., the man in charge of guiding antipoverty legislation through the Senate, demanded after Monday's hearing that Director Sargeant Shriver of the Office of Economic Opportunity be given a chance to rebut the charges.

Clark called accusations of racial agitation by antipoverty program personnel unsubstantiated and utterly false.

Rescue Attempt Fails, Beacon Man Drowns
A Beacon man drowned Monday night after apparently injuring his hand while swimming in Spring Lake at Red Hook about 6:40.

Darrel Sandford, 25, of 386 Liberty Street, Beacon was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. W. G. Thompson, medical examiner.

According to State Police, Sandford was swimming in about 40 feet of water 110 feet from the west shore. A witness said Sandford surfaced about 10 feet from a raft located about 120 feet from shore and shouted that he had injured his hand.

The witness, a woman who asked that her name not be used, swam to Sandford's aid. When she reached a point about 40 feet from him, he disappeared beneath the surface.

The Red Hook Rescue Squad recovered the body about an hour later.

Investigator L. C. Scott and Trooper T. D. Clark investigated.

HY-TEST 303

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Once every five seconds a picture of the backside of the moon flashed on television monitor screens at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Although some of the pictures were of an area never before photographed, only half a dozen persons watched.

The moon was getting to be "old hat."

That was the scene Monday as Lunar Orbiter 5, last of a successful series of photographic robots, televised frames it snapped Sunday as it started a 14-day orbital mission around the moon.

Relay of pictures from earlier orbiters drew crowds of up to 300 newsmen and off-duty technicians.

There was nothing wrong with the pictures—they were probably the best yet taken by any spacecraft in the $200 million program. The new photographs will aid lunar mappers and help find potential astronaut landing sites which soft-landing surveyors examine at close range.

But there were no surprises. The high mountains and wide craters filmed from an altitude of 1,660 miles were typical of rough areas already photographed thousands of times on the front and backside of the moon.

Lunar Orbiter 5 is expected to begin shooting late tonight its first pictures of the frontside from an altitude of about 60 miles.

Defends Contractor On Route 28 Project

An employee of the John Arborio, Inc., Phoenixia today defended the work being done on constructing a three-mile stretch of Route 28 between Boiceville and Mt. Tremper.

Mrs. Paul Church of Boiceville last week said people scrape the fenders of their cars in trying to enter or leave driveways and she said complaints had been received by her from truck drivers who claim they can't turn around on the new road without dropping into a ditch.

John Galu, office manager for the contractor, speaking for Supt. Sam Russell said, "We have received no complaints about people scraping their car fenders nor have we received any complaints from truck drivers."

Commenting on a published report that the road project is scheduled for completion on Dec. 1, 1967, Galu said "that is not the completion date. The state estimate for completion is June 20, 1968, but we hope to complete it before that date."

Galu noted that watchmen are on duty at the project, and 25-mile-an-hour signs are posted along the stretch of the new highway. He said, "many cars travel much faster than that."

Regarding criticism of the ditches on both sides of the highway, Galu said, the open ditches are for drainage purposes just like those along the State Thruway and other highways. He noted further that the highway pavement is 28 feet wide with shoulders of about 10 feet on each side, making a total of about 48 feet.

Two Brooklyn youths were picked up early this morning and are being held on charges of burglarizing a Route 28 gas station and a Woodstock pharmacy.

Ronald Newman, 20, of 53 Avenue V, and Robert Braun, 19, of 22-35 8th Avenue, Brooklyn, were arrested at 5:20 a. m. today while burglarizing Joseph

The youths were arrested by Woodstock Constable William Waterous and State Troopers Thomas Crowley and Craig Bremer.

The State Police reported that the youths were in possession of Polaroid cameras and narcotics, apparently taken from the pharmacy.

Newman and Braun were also held for the earlier burglary of a Route 28 gas station owned by Martin Lopiano.

Reportedly, the two Brooklynites had broken into the gas station and made off with change from coin machines.

Both Newman and Braun were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rudolph Baumgarten of Woodstock at 9 a. m. this morning and charged with burglary, third degree. They waived examination and await grand jury action at the Ulster County Jail. Bail has not been set at this time.

Two Brooklyn youths were picked up early this morning and are being held on charges of burglarizing a Route 28 gas station and a Woodstock pharmacy.

Ronald Newman, 20, of 53 Avenue V, and Robert Braun, 19, of 22-35 8th Avenue, Brooklyn, were arrested at 5:20 a. m. today while burglarizing Joseph Forno's Woodstock Pharmacy. Kingston State Police reported. The youths were arrested by Woodstock Constable William Waterous and State Troopers Thomas Crowley and Craig Bremer.

The State Police reported that the youths were in possession of Polaroid cameras and narcotics, apparently taken from the pharmacy.

Newman and Braun were also held for the earlier burglary of a Route 28 gas station owned by Martin Lopiano.

Reportedly, the two Brooklynites had broken into the gas station and made off with change from coin machines.

Both Newman and Braun were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rudolph Baumgarten of Woodstock at 9 a. m. this morning and charged with burglary, third degree. They waived examination and await grand jury action at the Ulster County Jail. Bail has not been set at this time.

"Don't Worry; It's in a Good Cause!"

Divergence of Views

The recent announcement by President Johnson to increase the United States fighting forces in Vietnam by 45,000 to 50,000 men and his request for additional billions to carry out his administration's Vietnam war policies will further widen the divergence of views in this country over our role in that conflict.

American fighting forces in Vietnam, which started out as a foreign aid project, have grown to approximately a half million men, the casualty lists are soaring and there seems to be no end in sight. Neither is there a clear prospect of accomplishing our objectives.

With a poverty war on the home front, the proposed 10 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes continuing until June 30, 1969 "or for so long as the unusual expenditures associated with our efforts in Vietnam require higher revenues" should cause anxiety. However, all are ready to make any sacrifices that are necessary to provide our men sent into combat with everything they need.

Among the nationally known personages to be concerned about the frustrations, hopelessness and futility of the war we are fighting in Vietnam is Bishop Fulton J. Sheen of Rochester, who is noted for his television discourses. He has called for the immediate withdrawal of U. S. troops from Vietnam "for the sake of reconciliation." This is in sharp contrast to Pope Paul, who wants a negotiated end to the war, and to Cardinal Spellman, who has stated that this is a "war for civilization" and termed "inconceivable" anything less than a U. S. victory.

The wide divergence of views among these spiritual leaders typifies the split in this country over our part in this war. The intransigence of the combatants must some day be compromised and negotiations begun. The formula that will bring that about no doubt will be far more complex than Bishop Sheen's, but his willingness to see his nation pull out completely could set off a new trend in the attitudes of the nation's religious leaders, and a reappraisal of past postures by our political leaders.

Remove Your Car Key

If people would remove their car keys and lock their cars up when they leave them in the street, one in 165 cars on the road would not be stolen each year. Unlike many other crimes, auto theft is susceptible to immediate and substantial reduction. All you have to do is take your key with you and lock the door.

Besides, auto theft has pernicious effect on the young, because two thirds of those arrested for stealing cars are under 18. All too often the joyride in someone else's car without his permission is the first step down the road to a life of crime. But for the temptation of seeing a key in the ignition, that life of crime might never have begun.

These are some of the thoughts taken from the statement of Richard L. Braun, of the Justice Department, coordinator of a nationwide drive to curb auto thefts. They took $500 million a year out of people's pockets, when 550,000 cars were stolen last year. Of these, 59 per cent were unattended cars with the keys in the ignition and 76 per cent had doors unlocked.

Furthermore, 90,000 of the stolen cars figured in accidents, injuring 15,000 persons, pointing up the danger they cause on the road. While nine out of ten stolen cars were recovered, it was found that it cost an average of $200 to return each car to prime driving condition. Had enough? Do you see why it is essential to remove your key and lock your car?

Good Grades Pay Off

Starting in October, students will have one more good reason to work hard in school.

As a result of studies that have indicated that good grades and safe driving go together, most auto insurance companies in 35 states will begin giving discounts up to 25 per cent to high school and college students under 25 who are in the upper 20 per cent of their classes or have B averages.

The companies will provide a form to be filled out and signed by a school official.

With 1.4 million motorcycles on the road in 1965 the death toll among them was 1,534. By 1970, Metropolitan Life predicts there will be five million motorcycles and deaths will rise to 5,000. That's nearly twice the fatality ration to automobile casualties.

The American Red Cross provides emergency services to fire victims in major cities. The spate of riots has developed greater mobilization to handle the widespread destruction. Immediate need for shelter, food and clothing will be given wherever the need arises.

The sniping that has developed in the more recent race riots has led dealers in guns to put away their window displays and curb their sales. This is no time to make it easy for anyone to get guns and ammunition.

Detroit Action Is Puzzling

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON.—Strange paradoxes confuse the American people nowadays as they try to understand just why President Johnson delayed for several hours the sending of federal troops into riot-torn Detroit a fortnight ago, while President Kennedy in 1963, without waiting for a request from the Governor of Alabama, ordered federal troops to Alabama when there were threats of or actual disturbances.

Also, President Johnson sent federal troops into Selma, Ala., in March 1965 to protect a five-day "March" to Montgomery, even though no state of "insurrection" had developed, nor was anything of the kind so "certified" by Governor Wallace. It is true that both the governor and the state legislature declined to spend the extra money for safeguarding the 55-mile, "March," and advised the federal government that the financial burden was already too heavy. As it developed, the federal government did spend at least 490,000 dollars.

But the basic issue then was whether the Federal government or the state should bear the added expense of protecting the public against the effects of a "demonstration" which the state authorities felt was deliberately organized by groups from outside the state in order to produce violence. In the case of Detroit, Mich., two weeks ago, however, the violence had already broken out and blood was being shed.

LBJ Faces Toughest Workout

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Troubles are piling up on President Johnson the closer he comes to the 1968 election, now only 15 months away. He is a political master but he is headed for his toughest workout.

Some but not all of his troubles: the war in Vietnam, the city riots, his request last week to Congress to raise individual and corporate taxes. Before election day he will probably have more troubles. Two of the best things that could happen to him—an end to the war and an unconvincing Republican opponent—are only dreams now. It's too soon to guess who the opponent will be and an end to the war is not in sight.

As for the riots: there may be more this year and worse one in 1968.

The Washington Post poked around in Congress, found uneasy spirits, particularly among Democrats, some of whom felt Johnson is hurting, and a belief that these are the most troubled times in this country ever.

Senate thinking wouldn't be complete without a word from Johnson's longtime friend and sometime critic, Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate's Republican leader and definitely not a man of few words.

President Johnson last week at a news conference endeavored to interpret his own obligations as follows:

"Under the Constitution and laws of this country and the uniform practices of all past presidents, before troops can be used in any civil disorder, the following elements must be present when a state seeks assistance:

First, a request for troops by the legislature, if the legislature can be convened, or if the legislature cannot be convened, by the governor.

"Two, certification of insurrection or domestic violence.

"Three, the demonstration of a clear inability of state and local authorities to control the situation despite the use of all law enforcement resources which can be brought to bear."

But the constitution doesn't mention any such step as "certification." It says simply that the federal government "shall protect" each state against invasion and, "on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence."

What isn't easy to take, since he is hypersensitive to public reactions to practically everything, is the accumulated mess he is wading through now and the unpredictability of things to come.

Perhaps the only break he has had so far, getting ready for 1968, is that the Republicans haven't yet come up with a towering presidential prospect who dominates the public imagination.

So, as of now, Johnson's political fate is in his own hands.

Vietnam, with no solution visible, was bad enough. It split American thinking. Everything about the war is intangible except him. As President he is the symbol of American law and order and some of the public concern will be dumped on him.

Worst of all, from a political standpoint, is the fact the cost of the war forced him to ask for a tax increase which will affect nearly

Past presidents, including Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, didn't ask for any "certification" of a state of insurrection or violence either at Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 or in Alabama in 1963, respectively. On these occasions, neither Governor Faubus nor Governor Wallace, or their legislatures, requested federal troops.

President Johnson asks for more than the constitution specifies. He says that a state has to demonstrate to a president's satisfaction that it cannot control the situation. He stipulates also that the governor must certify this in writing, even though for several hours in Detroit on July 24 representatives of the president were well aware that the riots had reached a point where federal intervention was imperative.

Some members of congress now are saying that the contrasting experiences in Michigan and Alabama show how, when an administration in power in Washington wants to support a negro "march," it sends in federal troops, but when confronted by violence in a state whose governor happens to be an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, the same instantaneous protection is not forthcoming. Yet it turns out that this has been furnished by the federal government to the people of other states from 1957 to date where certain of the potentially dangerous "demonstrations" have threatened violence without actually producing such a climax as occurred in Detroit.

More importantly, it is now obvious that to the nation he has shed the aura of far right-wingism that once had hung about his undeniably handsome head. That he is now widely accepted as a reasonable politician in the mainstream of Republican philosophy and action is not debatable. The national polls show him creeping up on Gov. George Romney of Michigan and former Vice-President Richard Nixon in public favor for the Presidential designation.

Gallup, for illustration, now everybody, if Congress approves, and therefore create new antagonisms toward him.

Perhaps his most deadly political opponent—and maybe consciously—Ho Chi Minh, Communist boss of North Vietnam, who has been at war 21 years, first against the French and now against the United States.

As leader of a pretty primitive society, it might have seemed reasonable to think he would have caved in when this country decided to make a real war of it and particularly when it began bombing the North.

He had one thing working for him and he made the most of it. This was his realization the United States would want to confine the war to the South rather than invading the North and thus risking war with Red China.

His reasoning after that seems clear. Since there was already dissension in America over the war, if the North kept fighting, the pressures at home, and even the election's political necessities, might induce Johnson to seek a truce.

To help make the United States get tired fighting such standstill war, Ho increased his forces as the United States poured in more men. But so far Johnson has shown no inclination to seek an easy way out.

The increased bombings in recent days may indicate the opposite. What Johnson may be seeking before election is not a truce but a victory.

Drew Pearson Says Charge Prisoner Neglect

WASHINGTON.—Disturbing whispers have leaked out that the Johnson administration has not done all it could to arrange better treatment for American prisoners in enemy hands.

One high official complained to this column that prisoner problems have been given a low priority at the State Department. He quoted Secretary of State Rusk as telling aides that the captured Americans are not prisoners but hostages, that the communists would demand a quid pro quo for treating them decently and that he had no intention of granting any concessions.

In the Pentagon, the brass-bound generals are so embarrassed over the un military-like behavior of a few captives that they have slammed the lid shut on all prisoner information. The prisoners' families have been warned not to talk to reporters lest the slightest publicity be used against the captives to increase their torment.

Actually the North Vietnamese are sensitive to world opinion and probably take better care of the publicized prisoners. The great Pentagon hush-up seems to be aimed less to protect the prisoners than to protect the authorities from criticism.

Perhaps to quiet the critical stirrings, the State Department has prepared a white paper on prisoners which will be published later this month. It is the work of George H. Aldrich, a legal counsel, who has summarized U. S. efforts to reach prisoner agreements with North Vietnam.

It is true, as the white paper will point out, that the United States has made repeated overtures through a dozen different channels to arrange prisoner exchanges, to get communist prison camps inspected by neutrals, to secure better treatment for American POWs and to obtain more information for their families.

Avrell in Charge

Ambassador-at-Large Averell Harriman has been assigned the responsibility for solving prisoner problems. Officials have confided to this column that he is merely the front man. The real work is handled on a part-time basis, they say, by Frank A. Sleverts, a functionary in Under Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach's office.

However, this is vigorously denied by Harriman's office. An aide claims the veteran diplomat spends half his time on prisoner matters and that a dozen men in the State Department are working almost full time on the assignment.

Before Abba Schwartz was forced out as the State Department's security chief a year ago, he had developed excellent pipelines through the Swiss bankers and International Red Cross to check on the prisoners.

The bankers, who loaned money to both North Vietnam and Cambodia, visited both countries regularly. They gladly inquired about prisoner welfare and requested information about specific prisoners.

To queries about specific persons, Hanoi usually responded that the prisoners were alive and were being "treated with humanity." In some cases, an exchange of mail was generated. The letters from the POWs, interestingly, have been postmarked in various places—Hong Kong, Geneva and other international centers.

More than one letter, however, has actually been postmarked in the United States. Schwartz's contacts, it should be stressed, were never permitted to visit the POW camps. Formal requests from the International Red Cross to inspect the camps were also turned down. The North Vietnamese contended that the captured Americans were "war criminals," therefore not entitled to the protection of the Prisoner-of-war convention.

Interest Lags
Meanwhile, Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., started after Schwartz's scalp for refusing to play spy games with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, and prevailed upon President Johnson to reorganize Schwartz out of the State Department.

Thereafter, Schwartz's contacts were neglected, and the government's interest in prisoner problems seemed to wane. Some contacts were kept up, of course, often by private individuals. Schwartz, for example, continued as a private citizen to seek information for prisoners' families. Sanford Gottlieb, director of SANE, spoke to Viet Cong representatives in Algiers about prisoners.

Ambassador Harriman also flew to Geneva in May, 1966, to try to promote a prisoner exchange through the International Red Cross. This and other efforts have failed.

At last count, 169 Americans were reported to be held by the North Vietnamese, another 20 by the Viet Cong. But many of the 481 American servicemen listed as missing may also be captives.

Differing reports have been received as to the number and locations of the prisoners camps. The Swiss bankers were told that there are four compounds, all in the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

What troubles the Pentagon, in particular, is evidence that some prisoners have been subjected to inhuman psychological torture in order to extort phony confessions from them. The armed forces have learned the hard way from the communists what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, tormented by evil men whose morbid genius is almost beyond belief.

Apparently this had been the fate of Lt. Cmdr. Richard Stratton, for one, who was put on display by his communist captors. He behaved like a robot, bowing deeply to command, otherwise standing motionless, eyes blank.

A French observer described the episode as "a frightening experience."

Reagan Formidable Contender

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON.—The Ronnie Reagan story is becoming more and more like a sweetened-up Hollywood scenario, in that its hero seemingly knows endless triumphs and practically no setbacks, but the political pros are not laughing any more. They are at last taking it all with dead seriousness.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California is now clearly a formidable contender for at least a G.O.P. Vice-Presidential nomination next year, if not indeed, for the Presidential nomination itself.

No one who has recently been in California with eyes and ears open can doubt that so far as his giant home base is concerned Reagan is going from strength to strength. By every ordinary measurement he is both a popular and an effective state executive.

Moreover, and far more importantly, it is now obvious that to the nation he has shed the aura of far right-wingism that once had hung about his undeniably handsome head. That he is now widely accepted as a reasonable politician in the mainstream of Republican philosophy and action is not debatable. The national polls show him creeping up on Gov. George Romney of Michigan and former Vice-President Richard Nixon in public favor for the Presidential designation.

Gallup, for illustration, now

reports that President Johnson's ratings in a "trial heat" by 51 to 39 per cent. In absolute terms, of course, this is nothing for the Reagan partisans to cheer about. But it is the relativity that counts at this stage; and here the Governor is scoring heavily. The net of it is that he is running only slightly behind both Romney and Nixon as a potential adversary to the President—and this is news of great significance.

For here is a man who only months ago was almost universally seen, outside California at any rate, as at best only a tail to the kite of Richard Nixon. He was a fellow who might help to push Nixon along next year, but surely no more than that.

As the position now stands the proposition might easily be seen in reverse; it will may turn out that it will be Nixon who helps Reagan along next year. The subtle currents are now moving more nearly toward Reagan than toward Nixon. And it is already plain that if the former Vice-President is to enter the Republican National Convention as a truly strong aspirant he will do so only at the cost of strenuous and successful exertions in the primaries next spring.

Why this turnabout? Perhaps the first explanation is that when one speaks of Hollywood scenarios it must be said that Reagan has refused to follow the script so many had laid down for him. He was supposed to be only an amiable and hopelessly amateur type who had reached office by a series of fortunate accidents. He was supposed to be a man quite without true political instinct or real capacity to administer public affairs. But he has thrown away the lines that had been written for him and has instead written his own.

Too, there can be no doubt that the factors that actually elected him—the savage student disorders at the University of California, the sickness of the left-wing faction of the Democratic party in California—are still promoting him.

Promoting him, too, both in California and in the nation at large, is an extremist Negro violence with which nobody can associate this conservative—but no longer too conservative—politician. He is the beneficiary of a national revulsion from far-out politics. He looks and sounds sane and sane, to use a political expression of half a lifetime ago; he is a kind of Warren G. Harding of the '60s minus the disabilities of that generally inept President of the '20s. He has been lucky in that as Governor he has been faced with no ravaging public crisis and thus has made no great bloc of implacable enemies.

His face, politically, is unscarred. And if unscarred it remains he is going into the G.O.P. convention of next summer with guns far more compelling than those he used to carry in the Western horse operas.

War Foes Out to Get Johnson

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent,
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—In a few weeks, anti-Vietnam war groups under the label National Conference for New Politics expect to convene in Chicago to consider practical political means to implement their opposition.

The performance could well turn out to be a curious blend of revenge and nostalgia.

Possibly the peace forces will name Dr. Martin Luther King and Dr. Benjamin Spock to a 1968 presidential ticket. Such a slate could run up a fair vote in New York and California, at least.

The general belief here is that they would hurt their great target, President Lyndon Johnson, the most.

But, since no strongly dovish Republican today seems likely to win nomination against him, this endeavor probably would register largely as an act of revenge.

Comments from Spock and others suggest that revenge will fire up the delegates to the prospective Chicago meeting Aug. 31. Yet there may also be embers of nostalgia for the late President Kennedy.

Alive, he too was a target of arch-liberals who complained he did too little. In martyred death, he is seen as a man who might not have sent U. S. troops and aerial bombs to Vietnam.

Peace advocates place reliance upon his occasional useful utterings about "overcommitment" of U. S. power in Vietnam and his evident distaste for throwing U. S. ground forces into that conflict.

Yet the meticulous history of his time in office lends no real support to this notion. Top Kennedy aide Theodore Sorensen, who wrote that history while lesser aide Arthur Schlesinger Jr. took the literary kudos for a lesser work, says in his book, "Kennedy," that our commitment was "not one that President Kennedy felt he could abandon without undesirable consequences throughout Asia and the world."

Kennedy believed that yielding on the commitment would only make it easier for Communist leaders in Hanoi and Peking. "I think we should stay," he said.

At a Washington press conference on Sept. 12, 1963, he added:

"We are not there to see a war lost, and we will follow the policy which I have indicated today in advocating those causes and issues which help win the war."

The goal was clear — To convince the Reds they could not take South Vietnam militarily, to persuade them that "continued aggression would be frustrated and unprofitable."

The soil of Vietnam was not, in Kennedy's mind, the whole stake. Writes Sorensen:

"Neither Kennedy nor the Communists believed that the consequences of success or failure in that country would be confined to Vietnam alone."

The late President not only executed the commitment but vastly expanded our effort in so doing. He laid this necessity at the door of Hanoi and Peking, as having first expanded their own effort.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Troubles are piling up on President Johnson the closer he comes to the 1968 election, now only 15 months away. He is a political master but he is headed for his toughest workout.

Some but not all of his troubles: the war in Vietnam, the city riots, his request last week to Congress to raise individual and corporate taxes. Before election day he will probably have more troubles. Two of the best things that could happen to him—an end to the war and an unconvincing Republican opponent—are only dreams now. It's too soon to guess who the opponent will be and an end to the war is not in sight.

As for the riots: there may be more this year and worse one in 1968.

The Washington Post poked around in Congress, found uneasy spirits, particularly among Democrats, some of who felt Johnson is hurting, and a belief that these are the most troubled times in this country ever.

Senate thinking wouldn't be complete without a word from Johnson's longtime friend and sometime critic, Everett M. Dirksen, the Senate's Republican leader and definitely not a man of few words.

Said Dirksen: "I have always gone on the theory that no political party is ever defeated by another—it defeats itself. And that is what I think is happening. Lyndon has exceptional skill but there is always a first time."

While this was hardly profound political philosophy, Dirksen, as a Republican, could hardly have been expected to say less, which makes easier for Johnson to take.

Accumulated Mess

What isn't easy to take, since he is hypersensitive to public reactions to practically everything, is the accumulated mess he is wading through now and the unpredictability of things to come.

Perhaps the only break he has had so far, getting ready for 1968, is that the Republicans haven't yet come up with a towering presidential prospect who dominates the public imagination.

So, as of now, Johnson's political fate is in his own hands.

Vietnam, with no solution visible, was bad enough. It split American thinking. Everything about the war is intangible except him. As President he is the symbol of American involvement.

Therefore, he has become the target for the opponents' blame. Then the riots mushroomed. He can't be blamed for them directly but he is the symbol of American law and order and some of the public concern will be dumped on him.

Worst of all, from a political standpoint, is the fact the cost of the war forced him to ask for a tax increase which will affect nearly

Past presidents, including Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, didn't ask for any "certification" of a state of insurrection or violence either at Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 or in Alabama in 1963, respectively. On these occasions, neither Governor Faubus nor Governor Wallace, or their legislatures, requested federal troops.

President Johnson asks for more than the constitution specifies. He says that a state has to demonstrate to a president's satisfaction that it cannot control the situation. He stipulates also that the governor must certify this in writing, even though for several hours in Detroit on July 24, representatives of the president were well aware that the riots had reached a point where federal intervention was imperative.

Some members of congress now are saying that the contrasting experiences in Michigan and Alabama show how, when an administration in power in Washington wants to support a negro "march," it sends in federal troops, but when confronted by violence in a state whose governor happens to be an aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, the same instantaneous protection is not forthcoming. Yet it turns out that this has been furnished by the federal government to the people of other states from 1957 to date where certain of the potentially dangerous "demonstrations" have threatened violence without actually producing such a climax as occurred in Detroit.

Moreover, and far more importantly, it is now obvious that to the nation he has shed the aura of far right-wingism that once had hung about his undeniably handsome head. That he is now widely accepted as a reasonable politician in the mainstream of Republican philosophy and action is not debatable. The national polls show him creeping up on Gov. George Romney of Michigan and former Vice-President Richard Nixon in public favor for the Presidential designation.

Gallup, for illustration, now reports that President Johnson outruns Reagan in a "trial heat" by 51 to 39 per cent. In absolute terms, of course, this is nothing for the Reagan partisans to cheer about. But it is the relativity that counts at this stage; and here the Governor is scoring heavily. The net of it is that he is running only slightly behind both Romney and Nixon as a potential adversary to the President — and this is news of great significance.

For here is a man who only months ago was almost universally seen, outside California at any rate, as at best only a tall to the kite of Richard Nixon. He was a fellow who might help to push Nixon along next year, but surely no more than that.

As the position now stands the proposition might easily be seen in reverse; it well may turn out that it will be Nixon who helps Reagan along next year. The subtle currents are now moving more nearly toward Reagan than toward Nixon. And it is already plain that if the former Vice-President is to enter the Republican National Convention as a truly strong aspirant he will do so only at the cost of strenuous and successful exertions in the primaries next spring.

Why this turnaround? Perhaps the first explanation is that when one speaks of Hollywood scenarios it must be said that Reagan has refused to follow the script so many had laid down for him. He was supposed to be only

Drew Pearson Says Charge Prisoner Neglect

WASHINGTON — Disturbing whispers have leaked out that the Johnson administration has not done all it could to arrange better treatment for American prisoners in enemy hands.

One high official complained to this column that prisoner problems have been given a low priority at the State Department. He quoted Secretary of State Rusk as telling aides that the captured Americans are not prisoners but hostages, that the communists would demand a quid pro quo for treating them decently and that he had no intention of granting any concessions.

In the Pentagon, the brass-bound generals are so embarrassed over the unilitary-like behavior of a few captives that they have slammed the lid shut on all prisoner information. The prisoners' families have been warned not to talk to reporters lest the slightest publicity be used against the captives to increase their torment.

Actually the North Vietnamese are sensitive to world opinion and probably take better care of the publicized prisoners. The great Pentagon hush-up seems to be aimed less to protect the prisoners than to protect the authorities from criticism.

Perhaps to quiet the critical stirrings, the State Department has prepared a white paper on prisoners which will be published later this month. It is the work of George H. Aldrich, a legal counsel, who has summarized U. S. efforts to reach prisoner agreements with North Vietnam.

It is true, as the white paper will point out, that the United States has made repeated overtures through a dozen different channels to arrange prisoner exchanges, to get communist prison camps inspected by neutrals, to secure better treatment for American POWs and to obtain more information for their families.

Averell in Charge

Ambassador-at-Large Averell Harriman has been assigned the responsibility for solving prisoner problems. Officials have confided to this column that he is merely the front man. The real work is handled on a part-time basis, they say, by Frank A. Steverts, a functionary in Under Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach's office.

However, this is vigorously denied by Harriman's office. An aide claims the veteran diplomat spends half his time on prisoner matters and that a dozen men in the State Department are working almost full time on the assignment.

Before Abba Schwartz was forced out as the State Department's security chief a year ago, he had developed excellent pipelines through the Swiss bankers and International Red Cross to check on the prisoners.

The bankers, who loaned money to both North Vietnam and Cambodia, visited both countries regularly. They gladly inquired about prisoner welfare and requested information about specific prisoners.

To queries about specific persons, Hanoi usually responded that the prisoners were alive and were being "treated with humanity." In some cases, an exchange of mail was generated. The letters from the POWs, interestingly, have been postmarked in various places—Hong Kong, Geneva and other international centers. More than one letter, however, has actually been postmarked in the United States.

Schwartz's contacts, it should be stressed, were never permitted to visit the POW camps. Formal requests from the International Red Cross to inspect the camps were also turned down. The North Vietnamese contended that the captured Americans were "war criminals," therefore not entitled to the protection of the Prisoner-of-war convention.

Interest Lags
Meanwhile, Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., started after Schwartz's scalp for refusing to play spy games with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, and prevailed upon President Johnson to reorganize Schwartz out of the State Department.

Thereafter, Schwartz's contacts were neglected, and the government's interest in prisoner problems seemed to wane. Some contacts were kept up, of course, often by private individuals, Schwartz, for example, continued as a private citizen to seek information for prisoners' families. Sanford Gottlieb, director of SANE, spoke to Viet Cong representatives in Algiers about prisoners.

Ambassador Harriman also flew to Geneva in May, 1966, to try to promote a prisoner exchange through the International Red Cross. This and other efforts have failed.

At last count, 169 Americans were reported to be held by the North Vietnamese, another 20 by the Viet Cong. But many of the 481 American servicemen listed as missing may also be captives.

Differing reports have been received as to the number and locations of the prisoner camps. The Swiss bankers were told that there are four compounds, all in the Hanoi-Haiphong area. What troubles the Pentagon, in particular, is evidence that some prisoners have been subjected to inhuman psychological torture in order to extort phony confessions from them. The armed forces have learned the hard way from the communists what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, tormented by evil men whose morbid genius is almost beyond belief.

Apparently this had been the fate of Lt. Cmdr. Richard Stratton, for one, who was put on display by his communist captors. He behaved like a robot, bowing deeply on command, otherwise standing motionless, eyes blank.

A French observer described the episode as "a frightening experience."

Reagan Formidable Contender

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON—The Ronie Reagan story is becoming more and more like a sweetened-up Hollywood scenario, in that its hero seemingly knows endless triumphs and practically no setbacks, but the political pros are not laughing any more. They are at last taking it all with dead seriousness.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California is now clearly a formidable contender for at least a G.O.P. Vice-Presidential nomination next year, if not indeed, for the Presidential nomination itself.

No one who has recently been in California with eyes and ears open can doubt that so far as his giant home base is concerned Reagan is going from strength to strength. By every ordinary measurement he is both a popular and an effective state executive.

Moreover, and far more importantly, it is now obvious that to the nation he has shed the aura of far right-wingism that once had hung about his undeniably handsome head. That he is now widely accepted as a reasonable politician in the mainstream of Republican philosophy and action is not debatable. The national polls show him creeping up on Gov. George Romney of Michigan and former Vice-President Richard Nixon in public favor for the Presidential designation.

Gallup, for illustration, now reports that President Johnson outruns Reagan in a "trial heat" by 51 to 39 per cent. In absolute terms, of course, this is nothing for the Reagan partisans to cheer about. But it is the relativity that counts at this stage; and here the Governor is scoring heavily. The net of it is that he is running only slightly behind both Romney and Nixon as a potential adversary to the President — and this is news of great significance.

For here is a man who only months ago was almost universally seen, outside California at any rate, as at best only a tall to the kite of Richard Nixon. He was a fellow who might help to push Nixon along next year, but surely no more than that.

As the position now stands the proposition might easily be seen in reverse; it well may turn out that it will be Nixon who helps Reagan along next year. The subtle currents are now moving more nearly toward Reagan than toward Nixon. And it is already plain that if the former Vice-President is to enter the Republican National Convention as a truly strong aspirant he will do so only at the cost of strenuous and successful exertions in the primaries next spring.

Why this turnaround? Perhaps the first explanation is that when one speaks of Hollywood scenarios it must be said that Reagan has refused to follow the script so many had laid down for him. He was supposed to be only may also be embers of nostalgia for the late President Kennedy. Alive, he too was a target of arch-liberals who complained he did too little. In martyred death, he is seen as a man who might not have sent U. S. troops and aerial bombs to Vietnam.

Peace advocates place reliance upon his occasional rueful mutterings about "overcommitment" of U. S. power in Vietnam and his evident distaste for throwing U. S. ground forces into that conflict.

Yet the meticulous history of his time in office lends no real support to this notion. Top Kennedy aide Theodore Sorensen, who wrote that history while lesser aide literary kudos for a lesser work, says in his book, "Kennedy," that our commitment was "not one that President Kennedy felt he could abandon without undesirable consequences throughout Asia and the world."

Kennedy believed that yielding on the commitment would only make it easier for an amiable and hopelessly amateur type who had reached office by a series of fortunate accidents. He was supposed to be a man quite without true political instinct or real capacity to administer public affairs. But he has thrown away the lines that had been written for him and has instead written his own.

Too, there can be no doubt that the factors that actually elected him—the savage student disorders at the University of California, the sick hippiness of the left-wing faction of the Democratic party in California—are still promoting him.

Promoting him, too, both in California and in the nation at large, is an extremist Negro violence with which nobody can associate this conservative—but no longer too conservative—politician. He is the beneficiary of a national revulsion from far-out politics. He looks and sounds safe and sane, to use a political expression of half a lifetime ago; he is a kind of Warren G. Harding of the '60s minus the disabilities of that generally inept President of the '20s. He has been lucky in that as Governor he has been faced with no ravaging public crisis and thus has made no great bloc of implacable enemies.

His face, politically, is unscarred. And if unscarred it remains he is going into the G.O.P. convention of next summer with guns far more compelling than those he used to carry in the Western horse opera.

At a Washington press conference on Sept. 12, 1963, he added:

"We are not there to see a war lost, and we will follow the policy which I have indicated today in advocating those causes and issues which help win the war."

The goal was clear — To convince the Reds they could not take South Vietnam militarily, to persuade them that "continued aggression would be frustrated and unprofitable."

The soil of Vietnam was not, in Kennedy's mind, the whole stake. Writes Sorensen:

"Neither Kennedy nor the Communists believed that the consequences of success or failure in that country would be confined to Vietnam alone."

The late President not only executed the commitment but vastly expanded our effort in so doing. He laid this necessity at the door of Hanoi and Peking, as having first expanded their own effort.

War Foes Out to Get Johnson

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In a few weeks, anti-Vietnam war groups under the label National Conference for New Politics expect to convene in Chicago to consider practical political means to implement their opposition.

The performance could well turn out to be a curious blend of revenge and nostalgia.

Possibly the peace forces will name Dr. Martin Luther King and Dr. Benjamin Spock to a 1968 presidential ticket. Such a slate could run up a fair vote in New York and California, at least.

The general belief here is that they would hurt their great target, President Lyndon Johnson, the most.

But, since no strongly dovish Republican today seems likely to win nomination against him, this endeavor probably would register largely as an act of revenge.

Comments from Spock and others suggest that revenge will fire up the delegates to the prospective Chicago meeting Aug. 31. Yet there

Communist leaders in Hanoi and Peking. "I think we should stay," he said.

At a Washington press conference on Sept. 12, 1963, he added:

Tiny Isle May File Charges Of Oppression

By RONALD THOMSON DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP) — The 1,000-year-old Parliament of this tiny island in the Irish Sea met today to decide whether to go to the United Nations with charges of colonial oppression against the British government.

As citizens of "an independent sovereign country under the British crown," the Isle of Man's 50,000 residents are free to decide their own internal affairs, but Britain looks after their foreign affairs. The British brought Manx resentment to a boil by insisting that Radio Carolina North, a favorite pirate radio station anchored off the island, must shut down by Aug. 15 in accordance with British legislation banning all radio pirates which beam commercial plugs and pop records into the United Kingdom.

Manxmen want to keep Radio Carolina North because it sends complimentary comments about the island's holiday attractions to northwest England and south-west Scotland, sources of the economy rolling. Thousands of fun-seeking British tourists whiled away the day on sandy beaches and in sea-food cafes on the island known for its motorcycle races and tailless Manx cats as the Tynwald, the 24-member legislature, convened.

Before the Tynwald was a motion accusing Britain of attempting "to extinguish the rights of a self-governing democracy" and calling on the United Nations to investigate. WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to enact anti-riot legislation for the District of Columbia.

Asks D. C. Law

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Walter N. Tobriner, president of the district's board of commissioners, recommended the legislation Monday, saying the only present basis for prosecution of rioters is a disorderly conduct law and Maryland's common law.

Probe Burglary At Al's Appliance

Investigation was underway today by Kingston detectives of a burglary reported at Al's Appliance Center, Inc., 85 North Front Street. Detective Albert C. Hutton, who is checking the break-in, said a small amount of cash was missing. Entrance was gained through a rear window. Alvin Weckowski, proprietor of the store, said inventory is being taken to determine what, if anything of value was taken.

UR Rehabilitation Has New Formula

A new program for the purchase and rehabilitation of housing for resale to low income purchasers was revealed at a meeting early this afternoon in the Board Room of Kingston Trust Company, 27 Main Street. Principals included officials of the Federal Housing Administration, Eric Hemphill, executive director of Kingston Urban Renewal Agency and representatives of various religious groups, social and service organizations and the Kingston Area Financial Council.

Ald to Reclamation Hemphill said that if a non-profit corporation can be formed and this new program utilized, it could be a distinct aid to the relocation of low income families from the Broadway East Urban Renewal Area. The program for the purchase and rehabilitation of housing for resale to low income purchasers, as enacted by Congress, is designed to encourage rehabilitation of housing for low income families in stable neighborhoods or to assist in the improvement of a neighborhood through rehabilitation in order to create a stable environment. The insurance of mortgages is authorized to finance purchase and rehabilitation by non-profit organizations of housing for resale to low income purchasers. Initially a project mortgage will enable the non-profit rehabilitation mortgage to purchase, rehabilitate and market individual dwellings comprising the project. The amount of the project mortgage will be the Federal Housing Administration "as is" value of the project or the total acquisition cost, whichever is less, plus the FHA estimate of total cost of rehabilitation.

The project mortgage, when finally endorsed, will bear interest at the permissible below market interest rate. Individual dwellings, when rehabilitated, will be released from the project mortgage upon sale to a qualified low income purchaser. The individual mortgage will bear the same below market rate at the project mortgage. There will be no mortgage insurance premium collected.

To qualify as a mortgage, a purchaser's income must be within the limits which would make him eligible for assistance under the Federal Rent Supplement Program and he must be an acceptable credit risk. The purchaser must pay on account of the property not less than $200, all or any part of which may be applied in payment of settlement costs.

UR Presents Strong Defense

he, his agency, and its executive director have made some mistakes, but overall, have done a good job in urban renewal in Kingston.

It is also known that Reis has to resign voluntarily. He can not be forced out or fired. Hemphill is answerable to the agency and they have supported him all the way down the line.

This is what the businessmen faced last night. On one hand, they had at least tacit assurance from the New York Office of DHUD, that if they could come up with a new board and executive director the program would get going again.

On the other hand, they had an agency and its chairman that thought they were doing the job and deserved to be retained to complete it.

Obviously, something had to give last night and reports indicate that it was the businessmen. Insiders say that Reis and

See Federal Payroll At 3 Million Peak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rising number of federal civilian employees probably will pass 3 million this month despite cost-cutting orders issued by President Johnson.

Executive branch employment totaled 2,980,156 in June, according to the Congressional Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

That represents a rise of nearly 500,000 employees since Johnson took office in November 1963, and is the highest on record except for during and just after World War II.

Some of the June rise was seasonal and temporary. The joint committee noted about half the 74,911 increase over May resulted from temporary summer jobs under the President's Youth Opportunity program. There also were seasonal hiring rises at the Interior, Agriculture and Post Office departments. Administration officials conceded privately there is little possibility of any significant job cutback even though Johnson has announced efforts to curtail spending by as much as $4 billion under the "cut, tax and borrow" program he sent Congress last week.

The outlook is for rising employment, officials said, because only a relatively small portion of federal spending is "controllable" by the administration and because Johnson will not cut antipoverty programs, controllable or not.

Summer jobs for slum dwellers, youth activities, work-training programs and other efforts to alleviate poverty are viewed officially as top-priority measures this summer because of racial tensions in the cities.

The civilian payroll topped $20 billion in the fiscal year ended June 30. The congressional joint committee reported that civilian agency wages and salaries totaled $11.8 billion while the Defense Department paid out $8.6 billion to its civilian workers, for a total of $20.4 billion.

Find Missing Girl Dead in Pennsy Swamp

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — A 12-year-old girl, missing since Sunday, was found dead today in a heavily wooded and swampy area near this northwestern Pennsylvania community.

State troopers said a searching party found the body of Connie Rae Carstater shortly after dawn.

Officers said there was no immediate word on what caused her death. The girl had pedaled her bicycle to a grocery store three miles from her home Sunday, cashed a $2 check she was given Saturday for her 12th birthday, purchased some candy and fishing equipment, then disappeared.

Charge Sale While License Suspended

Charged with selling alcoholic beverages while a license issued for the Empire Lounge on Vineyard Avenue, Highland, was under suspension, John Gersch, 29, of 17 North Road, that community, was arrested early today by State Police.

Trooper John Crodelle, who made the arrest with Trooper Edward Pulver, said the defendant allegedly sold alcoholic beverages at the lounge at 12:15 a. m. today and was doing business although the license for the premises had been suspended from Aug. 7 to Aug. 17.

Gersch was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Linn Baker, Town of Lloyd. The case was adjourned until Aug. 15 for hearing and the defendant was released pending disposition of the charge.

Local TAP Unit Offers Farm Aids

Steps have been taken under a directive from President Lyndon B. Johnson to assure that rural communities in New York have access to all existing services in their local development efforts, Charles Locke, chairman of the Ulster County Technical Action Panel for rural areas, said today. Locke, who also is county supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration, a Department of Agriculture rural credit agency, said the system will be operated through county Technical Action Panels throughout rural New York.

The county TAPs will serve as central, "one-stop" sources of information on programs available to rural communities that might help them solve economic problems and develop community facilities.

Technical Action Panels include local officials of Department of Agriculture agencies (Farmers Home Administration, Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Forest Service) as well as the extension and vocational agriculture services, and representatives of other federal or non-federal agencies that have services to offer in rural areas.

Local organizations concerned with community advancement will be able to determine through their county Technical Action Panel whether a federal, state, local or private agency can help with a project that cannot be carried out solely with local resources.

Locke said TAP organizations are established in 52 counties of New York where there are rural areas to be served. Local offices of any of the agencies represented on the county TAP can initiate action on an inquiry.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC
Ask any three people you know (politicians included) to define a political concept and you will get three different interpretations. Peculiar notions are formed as each one flexes his thinking. And who can say the one man is wrong, the other is right? For example, a friend sent us these definitions. Read them —

SOCIALISM: "You have two cows and give on to your neighbor." ... COMMUNISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and gives you the milk." ... FACISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and sells you the milk." ... NAZISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and shoots you." ... CAPITALISM: "You have two cows; you sell one and buy a bull." ... And finally, THE GREAT SOCIETY: "You have two cows; the government tells you to shoot one and milk the other, and then tells you to throw the milk away." ...

Sounds humorous? Maybe so, but there is a memorable familiarity in each one of them ...

Tiny Isle May File Charges Of Oppression

By RONALD THOMSON

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (AP)

The 1,000-year-old Parliament of this tiny holiday island in the Irish Sea met today to decide whether to go to the United Nations with charges of colonial oppression against the British government.

As citizens of "an independent sovereign country under the British crown," the Isle of Man's 50,000 residents are free to decide their own internal affairs, but Britain looks after their foreign affairs.

The British brought Manx resentment to a boil by insisting that Radio Carolina North, a favorite pirate radio station anchored off the island, must shut down by Aug. 15 in accordance with British legislation banning all radio pirates which beam commercial plugs and pop records into the United Kingdom.

Manxmen want to keep Radio Carolina North because it sends complimentary comments about the island's holiday attractions to northwest England and southwest Scotland, sources of the tourists who keep the Manx economy rolling.

Thousands of fun-seeking British tourists whiled away the day on sandy beaches and in sea-food cafes on the island known for its motorcycle races and tailless Manx cats as the Tynwald, the 24-member legislature, convened.

Before the Tynwald was attempting "to extinguish the rights of a self-governing democracy" and calling on the United Nations to investigate.

Asks D. C. Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to enact antiriot legislation for the District of Columbia.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Walter N. Tobrien, president of the district's board of commissioners, recommended the legislation Monday, saying the only present basis for prosecution of rioters is a disorderly conduct law and Maryland's common law.

The project mortgage, when finally endorsed, will bear interest at the permissible below market interest rate. Individual dwellings, when rehabilitated, will be released from the project mortgage upon sale to a qualified low income purchaser. The individual mortgage will bear the same below market rate as the project mortgage. There will be no mortgage insurance premium collected.

To qualify as a mortgagor, a purchaser's income must be within the limits which would make him eligible for assistance under the Federal Rent Supplement Program and he must be an acceptable credit risk.

The purchaser must pay on account of the property not less than $200, all or any part of which may be applied in payment of settlement costs.

he, his agency, and its executive director have made some mistakes, but overall, have done a good job in urban renewal in Kingston.

It is also known that Reis has to resign voluntarily. He can not be forced out or fired. Hemphill is answerable to the agency and they have supported him all the way down the line.

This is what the businessmen feared last night.

On one hand, they had at least tacit assurance from the New York Office of DHUD, that if they could come up with a new board and executive director the program would get going again.

On the other hand, they had an agency and its chairman that thought they were doing the job and deserved to be retained to complete it.

Obviously, something had to give last night and reports indicate that it was the businessmen. Insiders say that Reis and

See Federal Payroll At 3 Million Peak

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rising number of federal civilian employees probably will pass 3 million this month despite cost-cutting orders issued by President Johnson.

Executive branch employment totaled 2,980,156 in June, according to the Congressional Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures.

That represents a rise of nearly 500,000 employees since Johnson took office in November 1963, and is the highest on record except for during and just after World War II.

Some of the June rise was seasonal and temporary. The joint committee noted about half the 74,911 increase over May resulted from temporary summer jobs under the President's Youth Opportunity program. There also were seasonal hiring rises at the Interior, Agriculture and Post Office departments.

Administration officials conceded privately there is little possibility of any significant job cutback even though Johnson has announced efforts to curtail spending by as much as $4 billion under the "cut, cut and borrow" program he sent Congress last week.

The outlook is for rising employment, officials said, because only a relatively small portion of federal spending is "controllable" by the administration and because Johnson will not cut antipoverty programs, controllable or not.

Summer jobs for slum dwellers, youth activities, work-training programs and other efforts to alleviate poverty are viewed officially as top-priority measures this summer because of racial tensions in the cities.

The civilian payroll rolled out $20 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30. The congressional joint committee reported that civilian agency wages and salaries totaled $11.8 billion while the Defense Department paid out $8.6 billion to its civilian workers, for a total of $20.4 billion.

Find Missing Girl Dead in Pennsy Swamp

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — A 12-year-old girl, missing since Sunday, was found dead today in a heavily wooded and swampy area near this northwestern Pennsylvania community.

The girl had pedaled her bicycle to a grocery store three miles from her home Sunday, cashed a $2 check she was given Saturday for her 12th birthday, purchased some candy and fishing equipment, then disappeared.

Charge Sale While License Suspended

Charged with selling alcoholic beverages while a license issued for the Empire Lounge on Vineyard Avenue, Highland, was under suspension, John Gersch, 29, of 17 North Road, that community, was arrested early today by State Police.

Trooper John Crodelle, who made the arrest with Trooper Edward Pulver, said the defendant allegedly sold alcoholic beverages at the Lounge at 12:15 a. m. today and was doing business although the license for the premises had been suspended from Aug. 7 to Aug. 17.

Gersch was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lynn Baker, Town of Lloyd. The case was adjourned until Aug. 15 for hearing and the defendant was released pending disposition of the charge.

Local TAP Unit Offers Farm Aids

Steps have been taken under a directive from President Lyndon B. Johnson to assure that rural communities in New York have access to all existing services in their local development efforts, Charles Locke, chairman of the Ulster County Technical Action Panel for rural areas, said today.

Locke, who also is county supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration, a Department of Agriculture rural credit agency, said the system will be operated through county Technical Action Panels throughout rural New York.

The county TAPs will serve as central, "one-stop" sources of information on programs available to rural communities that might help them solve economic problems and develop community facilities.

Technical Action Panels include local officials of Department of Agriculture agencies (Farmers Home Administration, Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Forest Service) as well as the extension and vocational agriculture services, and representatives of other federal or non-federal agencies that have services to offer in rural areas.

Local organizations concerned with community advancement will be able to determine through their county Technical Action Panel whether a federal, state, local or private agency can help with a project that cannot be carried out solely with local resources.

Locke said TAP organizations are established in 52 counties of New York where there are rural areas to be served. Local offices of any of the agencies represented on the county TAP can initiate action on an inquiry.

Today's Thought

By JIM GILPATRIC

Ask any three people you know (politicians included) to define a political concept and you will get three different interpretations. Peculiar notions are formed as each one flexes his thinking. And who can say the one man is wrong, the other is right? For example, a friend sent us these definitions. Read them—

SOCIALISM: "You have two cows and give one to your neighbor."

COMMUNISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and gives you the milk."

FACISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and sells you the milk."

NAZISM: "You have two cows; the government takes both and shoots you."

CAPITALISM: "You have two cows; you sell one and buy a bull."

THE GREAT SOCIETY: "You have two cows; the government tells you to shoot one and milk the other, and then tells you to throw the milk away."

Sounds humorous? Maybe so, but there is a memorable familiarity in each one of them...

Business Mirror Reflections

Medicare Viewed
In Changing LightBY JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Nowhere is the ever changing business-government relationship more evident than in the position that much of the insurance industry now takes toward medicare.

Ten years ago medicare was considered a terrible threat. Now some of the country's largest insurers are using their administrative skills and computers to handle much of medicare's paper work under government contract.

To some extent this attitude is merely grudging recognition that medicare is here to stay. But it also reflects new attitudes by insurers, and changes in American social and political customs.

Third Criteria

Just a decade or so ago, insurance companies had two criteria for investing policyholders' money: (1) the soundness of the investment and (2) the yield, or return on the invested money. Now a third has been added.

This new criterion, said James Oates, chairman of Equitable Life Assurance, means that "if you are going to be in business for the long term and be effective, then you must invest in the public interest."

This change in a corporation's view of itself is more recent than many people realize. "In 1948, when I was in the practice of law," said Oates in an interview, "nobody thought the corporation had a concern with corporate citizenship."

But the concept of corporate participation in local and national goals is gaining more acceptance. Companies that once thought their only obligation was to stockholders are now declaring that the stockholder is best served by aligning the corporate goal with social goals.

This concept is still only broadly defined. In some companies it means greater participation in community affairs; spending money on education, cooperating on urban projects among deprived citizens and the like.

Increasingly in the past two or three years it is an awareness that profits can be made as well as social goals accomplished in areas such as pollution control, urban renewal, education and health, often under government contract.

In Profit Section

To some companies this evolution smacks of government control. But the justification as stated by numerous corporate and government officers is that these jobs, though guided by government, are to be carried out by the profit sector.

Reflecting on these changes, Oates said life and health insurance, "while it had a good record of progress in covering the needs of old people was not so alert as we, in hindsight, might have been."

This record shows that very few health policies existed for those over 65 in the late 1950s. A few years later, as medicare threatened, the number rose. "But it was too late," Oates recalled. "Processes were in motion and medicare was here."

And medicare took over most of the private "over 65" health insurance business. The company's recent fine results with medicare have called more attention to other "no-risk" areas in which life insurance can use its vast know-how.

An example: the company now administers the Tennessee Crippled Children's Program. Just a week or so ago the board of directors granted authority for the company to go into more of these no-risk areas "incidental and complementary" to insurance.

Data Sent to Governors

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Johnson administration—acting on the heels of a sharp dispute between the President and Michigan Gov. George Romney—has formalized its procedure for sending federal troops to a riot zone.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, in letters sent to all 50 governors, outlined steps they must take to obtain U.S. military help to quell a riot.

The requirements closely parallel those followed by the administration in sending troops last month to the Detroit riot. That procedure was criticized by Romney—a potential Republican candidate for president next year—as politically inspired.

Johnson and Clark have denied politics entered the administration's consideration of Romney's request for troops. Clark has said Romney didn't actually ask for troops until eight hours after the governor said he did.

Clark outlined this three-step procedure states should follow for getting federal troops:

1. Determine that serious domestic violence exists.

2. Determine that local and state police and National Guardsmen cannot handle the disturbance.

3. A request by the governor or legislature to the President for federal troops.

Clark said the request to the President should be written. But he emphasized that in cases of extreme emergency, receipt of a written request need not be a prerequisite to presidential action.

Romney has said he didn't understand until well after he first contacted Clark that a written request was necessary to get troops. He said Clark first told him an oral request would be acceptable.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Three weeks of arraignments and indictments by the Essex County grand jury finally have cleared Newark's jails of most of the 1,465 persons arrested during racial violence last month.

Most of those arrested before the evening of July 12, when the riots began, and the morning of July 17, when Gov. Richard J. Hughes declared the emergency over, have been released on bail or in the custody of their lawyers.

But Asst. County Prosecutor William R. Ferlanti said Monday that another 400 to 500 complaints are still to be heard by the grand jury. Ferlanti said 489 indictments involving 700 persons had been returned and 55 complaints involving 70 persons had been dismissed.

Statistics compiled from police records by the U.S. marshal's office here revealed that 90 per cent of those arrested reside in Newark and that nearly 50 per cent were over 25 years of age. The records appeared to discount claims by some city police that the riots were the work of "young outsiders."

Most defendants have asked for a jury trial and five extra courts are scheduled to begin trying cases Sept. 25, with judges available for pretrial motions beginning Sept. 15.

Charges against those indicted range from petty larceny to assault with intent to kill, but about 75 per cent of the indictments were for breaking and entering, larceny, or possession and receipt of stolen goods.

Police records showed 91 persons arrested on charges involving weapons or explosives. Two-thirds of these persons were over 25 and 20 per cent came from outside New Jersey, according to the U.S. marshal's office.

Representatives of the two teachers' organizations in the Kingston School District Consolidated and the Board of Education will meet tonight to continue discussions regarding the method which should be followed to decide which group would represent all teachers in collective negotiations.

It was learned that a poll taken at the last meeting of the teachers and school board, indicated that an election to decide the issue would be favorable to the board. The Kingston Teachers Federation has been requesting the board to call an election, while the Kingston Teachers Association asked to be named the bargaining unit, claiming the largest membership.

Arthur Withall, president of the board, noted that the law requires the school district trustees to hold conferences with the teachers to decide the method of arriving at a decision.

A teachers' unit was approved at the last board meeting for the purpose of collective negotiations. The issue could be decided either by the board designating a group to represent all teachers, or call upon the two teachers' groups to submit a certified membership list to decide which has the largest number of members, or call for an election, which now appears to be the forthcoming decision.

Firemen checked a motor blaze.

Kingston firemen were summoned to a 3-story brick mercantile building at 45 Mill Street, at 12:43 p. m. Monday to extinguish fire that broke out in an electric motor used to operate a commercial elevator.

Firemen said the fire extended to a small area of supporting timber adjacent to the motor. The owner had switched off the electricity and partially extinguished the fire before arrival of firemen, who used pressurized water to quell the flames.

Firemen ventilated the first floor. Deputy Chief Glyn Southard was in charge of firemen. Paid units responding to the call were Engine 1 and Truck 1 from Central Station, and Engine 3 from Cornell. Volunteer units at the scene were Wicks Salvage Truck and Cordts Hose Co.

The building is owned by the Mill Street Warehouse, Inc., and occupied by the Levine Bros. Bag Co.

As Inflation Hedge,
Avoid Profits Squeeze

Q "You have not mentioned Safeway Stores recently. We own 25 shares and would like to know if we should sell. We are seven years from retirement and worried about inflation. Our other holdings include American Hospital Supply; General Telephone & Electronics; Seattle First National Bank. My wife and I have hot but friendly arguments about holding Safeway. What is your opinion? Also we bought Croesus Mining in 1936 for our son. Is this worth holding?" R. F.

A I hesitate interfering in a husband and wife argument but I will repeat what I have said here this year. Safeway is a strong food chain, none better, but it is like many of its competitors—caught in a cost-price squeeze. For your objective, I would hold no stock facing rising costs which cannot be passed on in the form of increased prices. I advise you to switch Safeway into DeL Monte.

Your other holdings are satisfactory and I like your bank stock which is doing well from the standpoint of growth and price action. I can find no quotation on your son's mining stock and it appears to be worthless. I advise you to write it off and buy him an established growth issue such as Walgreen which sells at a reasonable multiple.

Q "I would appreciate your listing two stocks that you think will do as well over the next few years as your suggestions of Bristol-Myers and American Hospital Supply have done over the past five." L. N.

A The two stocks you mention have acted well because they operate in rapidly growing areas where profit margins have been consistently maintained. All issues in this category are at much higher levels than they were a few years ago. I continue, though, to favor the same type of stocks to achieve capital gains—which should be the aim of most investors. I suggest Holiday Inns and Gillette.

Budget Deficit
To Be Key for Tax Hike Push

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government witnesses are expected to use the potential size of the budget deficit—up to $29 billion—as their main argument in urging congressional approval of higher income taxes.

This blueprint emerged today as Treasury and budget experts drafted testimony for next Monday's opening hearing by the House Ways and Means Committee on President Johnson's plan for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate taxes.

Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the Treasury, is the first scheduled witness.

Other arguments—higher Vietnam war costs, the danger of inflation and high interest rates—also are expected to be cited in administration testimony.

But the top argument will center on the potential deficit, sources said.

One top official said he expects a round of speeches and fireworks against the President's plan but once these are over Congress will have no reasonable choice except to raise taxes.

NEW YORK (AP)—For two years, Gertrude Woglom had complained that the storm drains near her Staten Island home were in need of repairs.

Mrs. Woglom also insisted to city officials that when a street grade was raised above her home it left her at the bottom of a sink.

Once when it rained heavily many of the homes in the area flooded and policemen carried her from her house.

Saturday night the big rains came again and neighbors said the water rose to two feet deep.

Utica Newspaper
Negotiations
Are Progressing

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—The publisher of the Utica Press and Observer—Dispatch reported "considerable progress" Monday in negotiations with striking stereotypers.

Publisher Herman Moecker said management and the union, which claims ten members, reached tentative agreement on two major issues. The agreement will be taken back to local members, he said.

Donald F. Butler, international representative for the union, said he agreed in principle with the publisher's assessment.

The strike, called July 15 by the 14-member local of the Printing Pressmen, has halted publication of the afternoon and Sunday Observer—Dispatch and the morning Press, both owned by the Gannett group.

The American Newspaper Guild, which says it has about 60 local members, and the photoengravers joined the strike several days later. The Printers union, which claims 110 local members, and the 8-member photoengravers union are honoring the picket lines.

Leadership of the unions have vowed that no one would return to work unless "satisfactory" contracts have been reached with all wages and automation were said to be the primary issues.

Meanwhile, merchants said retail sales had dropped in the city because of the loss of advertising outlets. One merchant estimated the decline at 5 to 17 per cent, with specialty and discount stores the hardest hit.

Banker Accused
Of $20,500 Heist

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A former manager of the Brush-ton branch office of the Citizens National Bank of Malone pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Monday to taking $20,500 from the bank.

Merrill H. Lynch, 44, of Malone, was released in his own recognizance, pending sentencing.

He was charged with taking $10,000 of the bank's funds last Feb. 2 and $10,500 the next day.

Five Booked
For Hitching
Thruway Rides

Accused of violating a law which prohibits pedestrian travel or hitchhiking on the State Thruway, five persons were booked Monday by State Police of Troop T, and later arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert Ferrigan, Town of Kingston.

Trooper F. J. Ryan lodged charges against two persons who reportedly were hitchhiking to Expo '67. They were Darrow Bishop, 25, of Berkeley, Calif., and Barbara Bird, 22, of Orinda, Calif. Arraigned before Justice Ferrigan the defendants pleaded guilty and were committed to the county jail for five days in lieu of payment of a $10 fine.

Trooper J. W. Gallelli booked three pedestrians identified as Lulu Perkinson, 22, of Chevy Chase, Md.; Linda Burke, 19, of Montreal, Quebec, and Philip Menach, 17, of Queens. The trio pleaded guilty and were fined $10. They were ordered committed until the fines are paid, troopers said.

Mr. Quick Tells Why He Switched To OIL HEAT...

"We had an electric heating system installed in our home at Rusky Lane, Hyde Park. However, our heating bills ran so high we decided it would be less expensive in the long run to change over to oil heating. So, we did — and this past winter we enjoyed the warmth and comfort of oil heat. And, in addition, it looks like we'll be saving over $250 a year — enough to soon pay for the entire changeover."

STATEHOOD—Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., shown at a news conference in Washington, yesterday, proposed that the District of Columbia be granted statehood. He suggested it be called Columbia. Data Sent to Governors

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Johnson administration—acting on the heels of a sharp dispute between the President and Michigan Gov. George Romney—has formalized its procedure for sending federal troops to a riot zone.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, in letters sent to all 50 governors, outlined steps they must take to obtain U.S. military help to quell a riot.

The requirements closely parallel those followed by the administration in sending troops last month to the Detroit riot. That procedure was criticized by Romney—a potential Republican candidate for president next year—as politically inspired.

Johnson and Clark have denied politics entered the administration's consideration of Romney's request for troops. Clark has said Romney didn't actually ask for troops until eight hours after the governor said he did.

Clark outlined this three-step procedure states should follow for getting federal troops:

—Determination that serious domestic violence exists.

—Determination that local and state police and National Guardsmen cannot handle the disturbance.

—A request by the governor or legislature to the President for federal troops.

Clark said the request to the President should be written. But acceptable.

He emphasized that in cases of extreme emergency, receipt of a written request need not be a prerequisite to presidential action.

Romney has said he didn't understand until well after he first contacted Clark that a written request was necessary to get troops. He said Clark first told him an oral request would be acceptable.

Clear Newark Jail
Of Rioting Cases

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Three weeks of arraignments and indictments by the Essex County grand jury finally have cleared Newark's jails of most of the 1,465 persons arrested during racial violence last month.

Most of those arrested between the evening of July 12, when the riots began, and the morning of July 17, when Gov. Richard J. Hughes declared the emergency over, have been released on bail or in the custody of their lawyers.

But Asst. County Prosecutor William R. Ferlanti said Monday that another 400 to 500 complaints are still to be heard by the grand jury. Ferlanti said 489 indictments involving 700 persons had been returned and 55 complaints involving 70 persons had been dismissed.

Statistics compiled from police records by the U.S. marshal's office here revealed that 90 per cent of those arrested reside in Newark and that nearly 50 per cent were over 25 years of age. The records appeared to discount claims by some city police that the riots were the work of "young outsiders."

Most defendants have asked for a jury trial and five extra courts are scheduled to begin trying cases Sept. 25, with judges available for pretrial motions beginning Sept. 15.

Charges against those indicted range from petty larceny to assault with intent to kill, but about 75 per cent of the indictments were for breaking and entering, larceny, or possession and receipt of stolen goods.

Police records showed 91 persons arrested on charges involving weapons or explosives. Two-thirds of these persons were over 25 and 20 per cent came from outside New Jersey, according to the U.S. marshal's office.

Teachers,
Board Will Meet Tonight

Representatives of the two teachers' organizations in the Kingston School District Consolidated and the Board of Education will meet tonight to continue discussions regarding the method which should be followed to decide which group would represent all teachers in collective negotiations.

It was learned that a poll taken at the last meeting of the teachers and school board, indicated that an election to decide the issue would be favorable to the board. The Kingston Teachers Federation has been requesting the board to call an election, while the Kingston Teachers Association asked to be named the bargaining unit, claiming the largest membership.

Arthur Withall, president of the board, noted that the law requires the school district trustees to hold conferences with the teachers to decide the method of arriving at a decision.

A teachers' unit was approved at the last board meeting for the purpose of collective negotiations. The issue could be decided either by the board designating a group to represent all teachers, or call upon the two teachers' groups to submit a certified membership list to decide which has the largest number of members, or call for an election, which now appears to be the forthcoming decision.

Firemen Check Motor Blaze
Kingston firemen were summoned to a 3-story brick mercantile building at 45 Mill Street, at 12:43 p. m. Monday to extinguish fire that broke out in an electric motor used to operate a commercial elevator.

Firemen said the fire extended to a small area of supporting timber adjacent to the motor. The owner had switched off the electricity and partially extinguished the fire before arrival of firemen, who used pressurized water to quell the flames.

Firemen ventilated the first floor. Deputy Chief Glyn Southard was in charge of firemen. Paid units responding to the call were Engine 1 and Truck 1 from Central Station, and Engine 3 from Cornell. Volunteer units at the scene were Wicks Salvage Truck and Cordis Hose Co.

The building is owned by the Mill Street Warehouse, Inc., and occupied by the Levine Bros. Bag Co.

The Joiners
News of Fraternal and Civic Organizations
Moose Lodge 970 will hold its regular meeting Wednesday 8:30 p. m. at the lodge meeting room, 82 Prince Street.

Q) "You have not mentioned price action. I can find no quotation on your son's mining stock and it appears to be worthless. I advise you to write it off and buy him an established growth issue such as Walgreen which sells at a reasonable multiple."

A) "I would appreciate your listing two stocks that you think will do as well over the next few years as your suggestions of Bristol-Myers and American Hospital Supply have done over the past five."

A) The two stocks you mention have acted well because they operate in rapidly growing areas where profit margins have been consistently maintained. All issues in this category are at much higher levels than they were a few years ago. I continue, though, to favor the same type of stocks to achieve capital gains—which should be the aim of most investors. I suggest Holiday Inns and Gillette."

Budget Deficit
To Be Key for Tax Hike Push

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government witnesses are expected to use the potential size of the budget deficit—up to $29 billion—as their main argument in urging congressional approval of higher income taxes.

This blueprint emerged today as Treasury and budget experts drafted testimony for next Monday's opening hearing by the House Ways and Means Committee on President Johnson's plan for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate taxes.

Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the Treasury, is the first scheduled witness.

Other arguments—higher Vietnam war costs, the danger of inflation and high interest rates—also are expected to be cited in administration testimony.

But the top argument will center on the potential deficit, sources said.

One top official said he expects a round of speeches and fireworks against the President's plan but once these are over Congress will have no reasonable choice except to raise taxes.

Pleas Unheeded,
Woman Apparent
Drowning Victim

NEW YORK (AP)—For two years, Gertrude Woglom had complained that the storm drains near her Staten Island home were in need of repairs.

Mrs. Woglom also insisted to city officials that when a street grade was raised above her home it left her at the bottom of a sink.

Once when it rained heavily many of the homes in the area flooded and policemen carried her from her house.

Saturday night the big rains came again and, neighbors said, the water rose to two feet deep. Sunday afternoon the 56-year-old widow was found dead in weeds about 10 feet from her home, her pet Chihuahua dead in her arms.

Two Policemen Plead Innocent

More Arrests Expected in Detroit Slayings

DETROIT (AP) — Officials say more arrests are likely in the case of two white Detroit policemen charged with murdering two Negro-teen-agers in a motel at the peak of the city's riot.

Prosecutor William Cahalan of Wayne County said he expects more warrants to be issued in connection with the shotgun killings, "but not murder warrants." He indicated conspiracy charges might be filed against some of those present when the shootings occurred.

The patrolmen, Ronald August, 28, and Robert Paille, 32, pleaded innocent at their arraignments Monday. They were jailed without bond.

August is accused of killing Aubrey Pollard, 19. Paille is charged with killing Fred Temple, 18.

A number of witnesses have said the youths were slain during an early morning raid by police and National Guardsmen searching for snipers at the Algiers Motel in midtown Detroit on July 26, three days after rioting began.

A third Negro, Carl Cooper, 17, also was found killed by blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun in the motel.

But Cahalan said he lacked evidence on claims that Cooper may have been shot by a uniformed man.

Guard Defends

In other developments Monday growing out of the riots:

The National Guard issued a statement defending its actions in the machine-gun death of a 4-year-old Negro girl.

The county prosecutor's office charged two Negro youths with murder in the shooting death of a white Detroit patrolman.

John Ashby, 24, a fireman who died Friday of injuries sustained while fighting a blaze during the riots, was buried with honors.

Statements Secret

Cahalan said he recommended the warrants against August and Paille as the result of statements from 80 persons and a 30-page report compiled by an 18-man Detroit police homicide bureau team.

Cahalan refused to reveal what the statements or the report said.

Results of the investigation have been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for consideration of possible violation of federal law, Cahalan said.

Pollard, Temple and Cooper originally were listed in police reports as suspected snipers "killed in exchange of gunfire."

No weapon was reported found near their bodies, and this sparked an investigation.

The bodies of Temple and Pollard were found in one room and Cooper's was in another across a hall.

Claim Beatings

A number of persons who said they were in the motel on the night of the shootings claimed they were lined up against a wall, beaten with gun butts and threatened with death by the raiding officers.

The National Guard statement said Sgt. Mortimer Leblanc, 41, fired a .50-caliber machine gun at the apartment where Tanya Lynn Blanding was slain, apparently by guardsmen's bullets.

TRAGEDY—Charged with the murder of her four children, Mrs. Frances Connolly (C) is escorted by police matron Grace Johnson, L. and Trooper Richard Robichaud, as they leave the police station yesterday for arraignment in Ayer District Court. Mrs. Connolly is charged with killing her children with a shotgun then setting fire to the house. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

City Favors Cornwall Plan

In a brief to the Federal Power Commission released today, the New York Chamber of Commerce strongly supported the application of Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., for construction of a hydroelectric plant at Cornwall as "a major benefit to the people of the New York Metropolitan area."

Stressing the area's dependence on adequate electric power, the chamber affirmed that New York City cannot afford to be without the Cornwall installation. "Delay in initiating construction of this hydroelectric plant will be at the risk of the city's future economy."

Any interruption in the city's power supply is "a calamity of the first magnitude," the chamber said, emphasizing the need for an adequate reserve such as would be furnished by the Cornwall project. The chamber also maintained that this is the only type of generating facility known which can economically produce sufficient immediate power to meet peak demands for the city.

The chamber also stressed the project's potential for mitigating air pollution in the metropolitan area. "The contribution the Cornwall Project would make to the solution of this problem is a factor worthy of great significance in favor of construction of this facility," commented the chamber.

The brief, which limited itself to economic factors involved with the Cornwall Project, was submitted in behalf of the chamber by its general counsel, Lord, Day & Lord, in the course of the current Federal Power Commission hearing on the proposed Con Ed installation.

Questions, Answers on Federal Tax

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—The amounts I claimed for business travel and entertainment expenses are being questioned. What records do I need to back them up?

A—Generally speaking, you must be able to produce records to establish each of the following: (1) the amount of the expense; (2) the time and place; (3) the business purpose; and (4) the business relationship of those entertained.

A receipt or other documentary evidence is required for each travel or entertainment expenditure of $25 or more, with certain exceptions. IRS Publication No. 463, Travel, Entertainment and Gift Expenses, outlines the rules for deducting these expenses. You can get a free copy by sending a post card to your district director.

You may want to look over this publication before you have your audit interview. It will also be helpful in maintaining your expense account records currently.

Q—I just sold my house and had to pay a penalty on my mortgage since I paid it up early. Can I deduct this penalty when I file my tax return next year or do I add the penalty in as a cost of selling the house?

A—The penalty for paying off a mortgage before the date is considered an interest charge and should be included with your other interest payments when you itemize deductions. This penalty is not to be included with your selling costs.

Q—I was granted an extension of time to file my return. I sent the return in last month with what I owed but now I get a bill for interest. Doesn't the extension of time take care of that?

A—No, the extension of time excuses you from the penalties for not filing a timely return. The law requires interest to be assessed on taxes that are not paid when they are due and this cannot be prevented by obtaining an extension of time.

Q—I have my own business. How much can I put aside each year for retirement?

A—You may put as much as $2,500 a year into a plan or 10 per cent of your "earned income," whichever is less. However, only one half of this amount can be deducted. For tax years beginning after Dec. 31, 1967, the full amount of the permissible contribution can be deducted.

If you do create a retirement plan for yourself each of your full-time employees with three or more years of service must be included.

Q—My uncle has been our dependent for several years. Does the fact that he just turned 65 give me another dependency exemption?

A—No. You are entitled to one exemption for your uncle when he qualifies as your dependent. His age does not give you an extra exemption. This extra exemption may be taken only on a taxpayer's own return when he or his spouse is 65 or over.

Q—What kind of records do you need to establish a theft loss? Our house was broken into while we were away on vacation.

A—To establish a deduction for a theft loss you must: (1) show the date the theft was discovered; (2) show the property was stolen and not lost or mislaid; (3) establish ownership; (4) show evidence of value of property; (5) show any amount taken or allowable for depreciation; and (6) show the amount of insurance or other compensation for the loss received or recoverable.

The unreimbursed amount in excess of $100 is deductible for each theft of non-business property.

Turnau Opera Gives Rossini's 'Barber of Seville'

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

In 1815, the first performance of Gioacchino Rossini's "Barber of Seville," was a failure. Accidents marred the presentation — a cat walked across the stage, one of the singers suffered a nose-bleed in the middle of an aria, and the audience went into an uproar when the principal tenor had trouble tuning his guitar on stage.

Last night, Turnau Opera Company left its Byrdcliffe Theatre home on Overlook Mountain in Bearsville for the more spacious Woodstock School Auditorium to present Rossini's opera buffa masterpiece only to find a near repeat of that day in 1815.

Instead of cats and nose-bleeds, Turnau Opera singers were faced with squirming, noisy campers. The drone of their voices was punctuated with tin clangs of soda cans rolling around or being kicked over. And while camp leaders lost themselves in the action on stage their youthful charges continued their own action. It was a disgraceful display of bad manners and marred the entire evening.

The youngsters, I was informed, are with Camps Tanglewood and Hurley. May I suggest a course in public behavior prior to exposure to culture?

Despite the evening's counterpoint, Turnau's singers, under the very capable musical direction of Warren Wilson, managed to give a good performance of "Barber of Seville." Giving the production a deft touch of sparkle was Alan Baker, cast as Figaro. Baker, who is also stage director for Turnau, gave depth to the production. Adding chuckles and effervescence were Franklin Summers, who was the aging Dr. Bartolo, and Ronald Gerbrands as Rosina's music teacher. Gerbrands acting was superb. He consciously and purposely exaggerated his movements partly to make fun of them and also to make the most of them.

The production came through in true Rossini style despite the lack of mikes and, in spots, an overpowering piano accompaniment.

Comedy Plot

Seville is based on the famous comedy of Beaumarchais. Dr. Bartolo is in love with his ward, Rosina, sung by Sharon Bennet, who in turn loves Count Almaviva, sung by Anthony Safina. Count Almaviva tries to gain access into the carefully guarded household of Bartolo first by feigning that he is a drunken soldier, then by impersonating the music teacher Don Basilio. He manages to get in touch with Rosina and they plan an elopement. At first their plans are frustrated when Dr. Bartolo convinces Rosina that her lover is unfaithful to her. But when Rosina learns that this is not so, she married him instead of Bartolo. When the Count renounces Rosina's dowry in favor of Bartolo, the latter becomes more amenable to the marriage.

Turnau singers keep the music bright and fresh throughout and their voices are especially suited to the tuneful melodies. All the famous passages received capable handling including the "Largo al factotum" aria for baritone, the soprano cavatina "Una voce poco fa," and the bass aria "La Calun-nia." Of course, Turnau performs everything in English.

Tradition has dictated that in the "Lesson Scene," the soprano singing Rosina may interpolate arias by other composers. Miss Bennet was at her vocal best in this scene.

James Johnson serves as assistant musical director for Turnau while Jeanne Doyle is responsible for sets and costumes. Patrick Switzer was stage manager.

Joseph Porrello will sing the role of Count Almaviva on September 1 and 2. Also appearing in last night's production were Lorine Buffington, Ward Pineland, Patrick Switzer.

On August 11, 12, 14 and 15, Turnau will give a double bill at the Byrdcliffe Theatre. One of the operas will be "Pagliacci."

Choosy Robber

LINCOLN, Maine (AP) — A choosy young robber took $50 from a Canadian in a U.S. 2 rest area but refused to accept two Canadian $1 bills. Rainer P. Dorfschmidt, 26, of Bourlamaque, Que., told police he stopped at the rest area while traveling alone from Montreal to Newcastle, N.B. He said the youth stepped from the woods, told him he was carrying a gun and ordered him to turn over all his money.

Dorfschmidt said he handed over $52 but the youth returned the Canadian bills and fled.

The Pill Gets Film Treatment, No Seal

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer LONDON (AP) — Birth control pills are discussed in newspapers and magazines and on television documentaries. Why not in movies?

In what appears to be a natural extension of the new frankness in films, 20th Century-Fox is now producing "Prudence and the Pill." Prudence is played by Deborah Kerr. The pill is called trenol, which is a fictional trade name.

"I suppose we'll be banned in Boston," sighs Miss Kerr. "Perhaps Quebec, too. Oh, well, I've been through this before."

"Prudence and the Pill" is being made by two Americans, Ronald J. Kahn, producer and Fielder Cook, director, with an all-British cast. Kahn admits that the film may well encounter censorship problems.

"I first sent the script to the Production Code Administration, the industry's self-censoring agency—said Kahn. "They were horrified by the whole idea and said the picture shouldn't be made."

"Then I sent the script to the British censor. He said the story was charming, delightful entertainment. Frankly, I hope the picture is denied a code seal in America. That certainly helped 'Blow-Up' make more millions."

"Blow-Up" was refused a code seal, but was released by MGM through a subsidiary. This is a technique employed by some major companies, which are not allowed to traffic in non-seal films. Presumably Fox could do the same with "Prudence and the Pill."

Industry sources in America doubt that the new film will be passed. The code has traditionally been influenced by censorial attitudes of the Roman Catholic Church, and a comedy about contraception seems destined to little success with the reviewing bishops.

"There is absolutely nothing dirty about this picture," Kahn declares. "High Mills wrote a beautiful script from his own book. There are no scenes of couples in bed, no romps with nude teenagers as in 'Blow-Up'."

"Basically, it is a nice modern story about the way people live today. The pill has revolutionized the lives of people everywhere. I read an article that stated 5,700,000 American females admit they are now using the pill. And if that many admit it, there must be many millions more who are taking the pill but won't admit it."

Plot Thickens

Kahn outlined the basic elements of the plot: Judy Geeson is a British teen-ager who has been having sex relations with her boyfriend. Since she is unable to get a prescription for the pill, she has been stealing those of her aunt, Deborah Kerr.

Slaps Mosquito, Pistol Discharges

A White Plains man, target shooting on the property of a Gayhead, Greene County resident, Carl Shaky Monday night, slapped a mosquito which had bitten him on the arm and in turn accidentally discharged the pistol he was carrying. The bullet hit him in the left ankle and he was treated by Dr. Joseph Cally of Catskill. State Police identified the man as Alexander Sayky, 53, of 37 Summit Avenue.

Stolen Sapphire Has Jinx Stigma; Expect Return

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The Whitney "jinx" will return a large sapphire jewel to its rightful owners, a spokesman for the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney family said Monday.
The jewel was part of the $780,000 worth of gems stolen Wednesday from the Whitney home at Cady Hill, near this resort city.
Mrs. Herbert Douglas, Mrs. Whitney's secretary, said "it has been rumored that the stone will bring misfortune to anyone who is not a Whitney." She told a reporter Monday that Mrs. Whitney is confident the sapphire will be returned.
Earlier, Mrs. Whitney said thieves missed several other valuable jewels because of her carelessness. She told police she hid her jewels in four special places, one being a handbag under a blanket in a bedroom closet.
"When I looked carefully, it appeared as if someone had looked in exactly three of those places," she said. Instead of hiding her Empress pearls, valued at $500,000, she said she placed them on a dresser. "It was strictly carelessness on my part that saved the pearls," she said.
Among the missing jewels, all reportedly insured, are a diamond necklace which belonged to Mrs. Whitney's mother, an owl pin, and other necklaces, bracelets and pins adorned with rubies and emeralds.

Highway Hypnosis

Steady driving with your eyes fixed straight ahead can make you drowsy, dull your senses, and cause highway hypnosis. This will help you avoid highway hypnosis and also keep you aware of what's happening around you.

Health for All

TB in the United States a dead letter? If so, it's the latest dead letter you ever saw. The annual number of new cases reported still approaches 50,000 with 8,000 deaths.

Adults are now the chief victims of tuberculosis, but a considerable number of children still do get the disease each year. When TB strikes an infant or a young child, it often develops very rapidly and becomes a serious threat to life. Vigilance, in other words, is the watchword for parents and pediatricians.

Doctors recommend a tuberculin test for every infant by the age of one. If TB infection is found, drug treatment is usually effective in preventing active disease or in curing it if it is already developed. If the test proves negative, it should be repeated every six months until the age of three. From then on, the tuberculin test should form part of an annual medical checkup.

A positive TB test should be followed by a chest x-ray to find out whether there is active disease. Because most infections in children are acquired from adults, the parents and other adult associates of every infected child should be tuberculin tested and, if necessary, x-rayed and treated.

All persons who regularly come in close contact with children, such as teachers and other school personnel, baby sitters, and child nurses, should be tuberculin tested annually to find out whether they have TB infection. These measures are recommended by the U. S. Public Health Service, the National Tuberculosis Association, and your local Christmas Seal organization. If the infection of children with the TB germ can be prevented, a long step will have been accomplished toward abolishing the disease.

How many times have you watched people working in their yards and how often have you wondered if they were familiar with accepted cultural practices or the names of various plants, shrubs, trees and their special uses. Only through years of study, observation and experience does proficiency and this know how develop. 4-H members through their varied experiences, learn to identify trees, shrubs, weeds and variety of flowers and how to keep them growing and healthy.

According to Professor Schaulfer over 1000 boys and girls are now enrolled in projects relating to home grounds improvement and many of these members are laying plans to exhibit specimen cuttings and collections at the Ulster County Fair on August 11, 12 and 13 and at the New York State Fair from August 29 to September 4.

Kids Carnival To Benefit MD

A neighborhood carnival for the benefit of muscular dystrophy victims will be held Aug. 11 at 285 Flatbush Avenue.

Louis and Frank L. Casciaro Jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Casciaro will conduct the event assisted by Carol DeCicco, Paula and Shari Fabbie.

The carnival will begin 11:15 a. m. with games and a variety of articles donated by local merchants. All proceeds will go to aid the fight against muscular dystrophy.

Strip Show or Taxes

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) — A group of citizens protesting a bump-and-grind show at the annual county fair have been warned of an imminent tax hike if the hootchy-kootchy is canceled in 1967.

The City Council met Monday and left it up to the volunteer fire department whether to keep the show. The department runs the fair each year.

But a council spokesman said the firemen would lose about $1,200 if it cancels the girly show—by far the fair's most popular event.

The $1,200 buys firefighting equipment each year, he said, and a tax would have to be substituted for the profitable dance.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 8, the 220th day of 1967. There are 145 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1588, British sea forces destroyed the Spanish Armada.

On this date:

In 1776, John Paul Jones was commissioned a captain in the American Navy.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte sailed for the island of St. Helena, where he died in exile.

In 1964, 26 nations agreed to the first Red Cross convention at Geneva.

In 1940, Germany began its concentrated bombing of Britain in World War II.

In 1945, the Soviet Union declared war on Japan — seven days before the Japanese surrender in World War II.

In 1963, a gang of robbers staged a train holdup near Cheddington, England, getting away with more than $7 million.

Ten years ago — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told the East German parliament that Germany could be reunited only through a confederation of its two parts.

Five years ago — A crisis arose in Argentina as an army commander set up a rebel headquarters in the northwestern part of the country.

One year ago — The U.S. government summoned striking mechanics and five major airlines to the negotiating table to try to end a month-long walkout.

UCCC Enrolls 70 During First Day

Approximately 70 freshmen were registered at the new Ulster County Community College campus at Stone Ridge Monday in the first day of early registration.

It is estimated that 430 incoming students already accepted by the college will be processed during the week. The registration is done by programs with freshmen in specially selected groups according to curriculum going through counseling at the George Clinton Administration Building.

The early registration was tried out last year and found to be most effective. It relieves last minute pressures in September and allows more time for counseling.

It is expected a total of 550 freshmen will be entering the college this fall.

Charles Schenck, director of admissions, previously said there are still vacancies for first year students at UCCC this fall and no restriction of admissions is contemplated.

Early registration will continue through Friday, utilizing audio-visual techniques available at the Stone Ridge campus.

At Stone Ridge there are four buildings which will be used by students starting in September. The temporary campus in Kingston offered only one building—a former elementary school building.

Lloyd Area Cleared After Finding Shell

Occupants of a house on Old New Paltz Road, Town of Lloyd, were evacuated and workmen on a construction project were ordered from the area Monday afternoon after State Police were notified that a "bomb" was discovered.

State Trooper John Crodelle of Highland said the object turned out to be a 75 artillery shell, which was "live." Sgt. Stanley Kowalik, BCI Investigator James Kaljian and Trooper Jack Ostmark investigated. They ordered all persons in the area to leave until the arrival of a crew from the Explosives Ordnance Disposal Unit at Stewart Air Force Base arrived.

Crodelle said the Air Force unit eliminated the danger of the shell exploding. Work on the construction project was halted until the all clear was reported at 6:37 p. m. Investigation was underway in an effort to determine where the shell came from. The shell was discovered by workmen after a dynamite blast was set off, authorities said.

Balenciaga Unveils Elegance in Latest Paris Style Show

By LUCIE NOEL
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — Balenciaga drew the curtain on the Paris winter fashion shows today with a collection devoid of jazz or gimmicks and expressing beautiful, traditional and true elegance.

There's big news in suits displayed by Balenciaga, often called the grand master of haute couture. This season he likes them cut close to the body, following its shape and featuring a curved cutaway jacket.

He does them again and again in Donegal or salt and pepper tweeds, or black wool toughed with a narrow velvet collar.

This by no means signifies that he has given up his own techniques. Favorite Themes such as wrist length of fingertip tunics, appear throughout. The newest are worn with slacks or bermudas.

Many of the long pants are in uncurled lamb, as worn by Balkan or Spanish peasants. And he does topcoats in the same lamb and in almost every color—green, cerise, café au lait, beige and brown.

Many skirts in Balenciaga's suits are quite straight. The newest have a back panel with multiple pleating, and others a wide front panel left unpressed.

Sleeves are narrow, set in a high shoulderline, but on topcoats they are raglan for the most part, expertly tailored and with no padding anywhere.

Most applause went to the simplest unfitted shifts with such subtle detailing as an unpressed front pleat and side pockets in the seams and a couple of buttons, all in a little green wool dress.

Evening hemlines dip and trail in petal points, umbrella points and scooped effects. The fronts are cut away to the kneecaps.

Balenciaga's hemlines are at the knees for daytime, but sometimes clear them for sports. For evening, there is a stunt or two like twin miniskirts in black or coffee "gazar" with full bolero jackets.

'Oklahoma' in Woodstock Tonight

Rodgers and Hammerstein's great bouncy musical, OKLAHOMA!, opens tonight at the Woodstock Playhouse and will play thru Sunday, Aug. 20.

OKLAHOMA! changed the musical theatre world overnight with its music, zest and pure American corn! Audiences love it and come away whistling. Never have so many memorable tunes been put into one show! There is the lovely ballad, "People Will Say We're In Love," the sprightly, "Surrey With The Fringe On Top" and the naughty "I Can't Say No" just to name a few.

OKLAHOMA! is the perfect musical, weaving song, dance and drama into a spunky endearing show. It tells the love story of Curley and Laurey, young settlers in the brand new State of Oklahoma. Set against corn that grows high as an elephant's eye, Laurey and Curley flirt, pout and kiss among their lusty, rambunctious friends. Ado Annie is there, spreading her charms around, but so is Jud, dark and twisted.

Musical Director, Richard Albert promises a fresh, sparkling production of OKLAHOMA!

KHS Class of '58 Plans Reunion

Kingston High School graduating class of 1958 is planning a 10th year reunion.

A meeting is scheduled at Britts Community Room, Aug. 17 at 7:30 p. m., to organize committees.

Members of the class who are interested in working on the reunion are requested to attend.

HOMA! to Woodstock audiences; with stage direction by Harold Baldrige and Scenery and Lighting by David F. Segal. Costumes will be handled by Miss Pamela Dendy.

Del Hinkley and Liz Lamkin will play Curley and Laurey, while the villainous role of Jud goes to Will Roy. Tanny McDonald is cast as Ado Annie and Martha Miller as Aunt Eller. They will be supported by a large cast of young dancers and singers.

From the pioneer days of Oklahoma, the Woodstock Playhouse takes audiences back to the time of Shakespeare, with musical modifications. The second musical offering of the 30th season is KISS ME KATE, that biting, droll version of Shakespeare's comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew." KISS ME KATE will open at the Playhouse on Tuesday, August 22 and run through Monday, September 4. Filled with wit, sarcasm and song, KISS ME KATE is a sophisticated, brilliant musical. Lavishly costumed and set in 16th century Padua, KISS ME KATE will be the most extravagant production of the season.

Information and reservations for both musicals may be obtained at the Playhouse.

Curtain is at 8:40 Tuesday through Saturday and 7:30 on Sundays, except Sunday, September 3 when it will be at 8:40 and Monday, September 4 when it will be 7:30 p. m.

There will be special matinee performances of both musicals on Saturdays, August 12, 19, 26 and September 2.

By LUCIE NOEL AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — Balenciaga drew the curtain on the Paris winter fashion shows today with a collection devoid of jazz or gimmicks and expressing beautiful, traditional and true elegance.

There's big news in suits displayed by Balenciaga, often called the grand master of haute couture. This season he likes them cut close to the body, following its shape and featuring a curved cutaway jacket.

He does them again and again in Donegal or salt and pepper tweeds, or black wool touched with a narrow velvet collar.

This by no means signifies that he has given up his own techniques. Favorite Themes such as wrist length of fingertip tunics, appear throughout. The newest are worn with slacks or bermudas.

Many of the long pants are in uncurled lamb, as worn by Balkan or Spanish peasants. And he does topcoats in the same lamb and in almost every color—green, cerise, cafe au lait, beige and brown.

Many skirts in Balenciaga's suits are quite straight. The newest have a back panel with multiple pleating, and others a wide front panel left unpressed.

Sleeves are narrow, set in a high shoulderline, but on topcoats they are raglan for the most part, expertly tailored and with no padding anywhere.

Most applause went to the simplest unfitted shifts with such subtle detailing as an unpressed front pleat and side pockets in the seams and a couple of buttons, all in a little green wool dress.

Evening hemlines dip and trail in petal points, umbrella points and scooped effects. The fronts are cut away to the knee-caps.

Balenciaga's hemlines are at the knees for daytime, but sometimes clear them for sports. For evening, there is a stunt or two like twin miniskirts in black or coffee "gazar" with full bolero jackets.

Paltz Instruction Attracts Visitors

Thirty college faculty members attending a Development Institute in Educational Media at Columbia University will visit State University College, New Paltz, August 4 to inspect the College's audiovisual equipment, television studio, and computer-assisted instruction facilities.

New Paltz was selected for the tour because of its exemplary program for instructional resources and its reputation for teacher preparation, according to Dr. Paul W. F. Witt, director of the Institute and Professor of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University.

The Institute is sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education and Columbia. It is designed to prepare college faculty members as directors, supervisors, and administrators of educational media programs at colleges and universities.

New Paltz will conduct several classes in computer-assisted instruction this fall and has prepared a number of television lectures for use by college classes and educational television programs. It has recently received a $7500 grant from the Federal government, to be matched by the College, for a self-instructing laboratory on the use of audiovisual equipment.

Spenser Rohrliek, associate for campus audiovisual services at New Paltz, will host the Columbia visitors.

'Oklahoma' in Woodstock Tonight

Rodgers and Hammerstein's great bouncy musical, OKLAHOMA!, opens tonight at the Woodstock Playhouse and will play thru Sunday, Aug. 20.

OKLAHOMA! changed the musical theatre world overnight with its music, zest and pure American corn! Audiences love it and come away whistling. Never have so many memorable tunes been put into one show! There is the lovely ballad, "People Will Say We're In Love," the sprightly, "Surrey With The Fringe On Top" and the naughty "I Can't Say No" just to name a few.

OKLAHOMA! is the perfect musical, weaving song, dance and drama into a spunky endearing show. It tells the love story of Curley and Laurey, young settlers in the brand new State of Oklahoma. Set against corn that grows high as an elephant's eye, Laurey and Curley flirt, pout and kiss among their lusty, rambunctious friends. Ado Annie is there, spreading her charms around, but so is Jud, dark and twisted.

Musical Director, Richard Albert promises a fresh sparkling production of OKLAHOMA!

KHS Class of '58 Plans Reunion

Kingston High School graduating class of 1958 is planning a 10th year reunion.

A meeting is scheduled at Britts Community Room, Aug. 17 at 7:30 p. m., to organize committees.

Members of the class who are interested in working on the reunion are requested to attend.

HOM! to Woodstock audiences; with stage direction by Harold Baldrige and Scenery and Lighting by David F. Segal, Costumes will be handled by Miss Pamela Dendy.

Del Hinkley and Liz Lamkin will play Curley and Laurey, while the villainous role of Jud goes to Will Roy, Tanny McDonald is cast as Ado Annie and Martha Miller as Aunt Eller. They will be supported by a large cast of young dancers and singers.

From the pioneer days of Oklahoma, the Woodstock Playhouse takes audiences back to the time of Shakespeare, with musical modifications. The second musical offering of the 30th season is KISS ME KATE, that biting, droll version of Shakespeare's comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew." KISS ME KATE will open at the Playhouse on Tuesday, August 22 and run through Monday, September 4. Filled with wit, sarcasm and song, KISS ME KATE is a sophisticated, brilliant musical. Lavishly costumed and set in 16th century Padua, KISS ME KATE will be the most extravagant production of the season.

Information and reservation for both musicals may be obtained at the Playhouse.

Curtain is at 8:40 Tuesday through Saturday and 7:30 on Sundays, except Sunday, September 3 when it will be at 8:40 and Monday, September 4 when it will be 7:30 p. m.

There will be special matinee performances of both musicals on Saturdays, August 12, 19, 26 and September 2.

Give the Children A Blueberry Break

Give the children a break! One that really counts in terms of restored energy and good humor. Especially during vacation-time when they're using up more of their reserves in active exercise, they need to stop for a bite mid-morning and afternoon.

And give them a break in the slang sense of the word, too. With fresh blueberries in season it's almost sinful to pass up any opportunity to pass them along to the children in some form or another. Not only because kids love them, but because blueberries are so good for them.

These Blueberry Oatmeal Muffins provide healthful extra nourishment at breakfast rather than wasted calories. To make the time really well spent, serve the muffins with a blueberry milk drink, topped with a scoop of vanilla ice cream. Use bottled blueberry syrup or concentrated juice made by cooking up fresh blueberries and sweetening them with sugar.

BLUEBERRY OATMEAL MUFFINS

3 cups biscuit mix
1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/4 cup quick cooking oatmeal
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 eggs, well beaten
1 1/2 cups milk
1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
2 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained

Combine biscuit mix, brown sugar, oatmeal and cinnamon. Mix eggs, milk and butter. Add to dry ingredients all at once and stir until just blended. Fold in blueberries. Spoon into greased muffin pans filling cups 2/3 full. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 F.) for 15 to 20 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan and cool on a rack. Serve with Blueberry Flats, made with milk, blueberry syrup and vanilla ice cream. Yield: 18 muffins.

BLUEBERRY OATMEAL MUFFINS—The best break of all is to break a blueberry muffin in two and eat it with blueberry-flavored milk topped with ice cream. You don't have to be a kid to like that!

Senior Citizen Activities

Summer does not mean a cessation of all activities for the YWCA Golden Age Club, just a change in programming! Last week 41 club members traveled by bus to Algonquin Park in Newburgh where they joined senior citizens from Beacon, Middletown, Pine Bush, Poughkeepsie, Wallkill, and Newburgh for a fun filled, all-day picnic.

The Newburgh Senior Citizen Club served as host and Kingston provided entertainment in the form of music by the Gene Knapp Trio. Dancing and group singing helped complete the program.

Future plans call for a trip to Lake George in August. In the meantime, Tuesday afternoon continues to be the time when Golden Agers meet at the YWCA to sort and fold newspapers and to chat. Refreshments are served afterwards. All Senior Citizens interested in this project are welcome to visit the "Y" between noon and 4 p. m. on Tuesday. Many also linger until evening to listen to the band concert on Academy Green.

Senior Citizens desiring more information about the Golden Age Club may contact the YWCA at 209 Clinton Avenue. This is just one of the regular activities at the YWCA, a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

TOM PAXTON, who has played to sold-out concerts in America and England, will be appearing Monday, Aug. 14 at 8:40 p. m. in the Woodstock Playhouse. In New York, Paxton gave his first solo concert at Carnegie Hall in January and that sold-out audience would have had him sing all night. In London, people were turned away from the 7,000 seat Albert Hall where he appeared. Paxton is also writing music and lyrics to a dramatization of Thoreau's life and other projects include an American folk opera, a novel, more new songs and a new record. Tickets to the concert may be obtained at the Woodstock Playhouse.

A QUIZ ON TRADITIONAL BRIDAL SHOWER

This quiz is designed to help those who want to give an old-fashioned, traditional bridal shower. In most ways it will not apply to the enormous catered affairs given frequently today, which have little resemblance to the intimate affair a shower originally was!

1. Bridal showers are given by close friends of the bride. True.. False..

2. Those invited should be chosen from the bride's friends and relatives who will be invited to the wedding. True.. False..

3. The hostess makes up the list of guests without consulting the bride. True.. False..

4. A bridal shower is always in the form of a luncheon. True.. False..

5. The groom is invited to all showers for his bride. True.. False..

Remaining schedule:
Tonight — Elmer's vs. Herzog's.

Aug. 13 — Elmer's vs. All-Stars (2).

Aug. 14 — Completion of Herzog's-Lions Club protested game.

Good pitching by Bob Speirs and the 11 o'clock curfew combined to knock the All-Stars out of the City Baseball League race as Elmer's Inn scored a 6-4 win Monday at Dietz Stadium.

The losers scored three runs in the sixth inning but didn't get a chance to bat in the seventh because of the curfew which doesn't permit an inning to begin after 11 p. m.

Elmer's took a 4-0 lead in the third inning off loser Gene Stoutenburg with a two-run single by Tom Tegeler the big blow.

After the All-Stars had tallied once in the top of the fifth, the winners came back for two in their half, making it a 6-1 game.

In the sixth, Speirs walked Tony Secreto and John Berardi with one out. After getting another out, he walked Ron Thomas and Nick Berardi and gave up a hit to Pat Berardi before retiring the side and preserving the win.

Vols, KPA Triumph In Babe Ruth League

Vols rode the two-hit pitching of Pat Harder to whitewash Hurley, 8-0, in a Babe Ruth League game Monday at Dietz Stadium.

In the other circuit tilt, KPA defeated the Lions Club, 7-1, at Loughran Park.

While Harder was breezing through the Hurley lineup, the winners collected 10 hits off Eric Assion and his relief chucker. The winners completed the win by scoring four times in the seventh inning.

KPA came from behind with four runs in the third and coasted to its win over the Lions Club. Steve Peruso threw a one-hitter and fanned seven. Ten walks kept him in trouble most of the way.

Starter Tom Kuriger and relief pitcher Tim O'Donnell were tagged for five safeties. Kuriger walked eight and fanned five during his tenure on the hill.

Cubs' Losing Streak: Never Ending Thing

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh, in the first game of a double-header Monday at Wrigley Field—where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed—as part of a double-header Wednesday.

In the only other scheduled National League games, both at night, Ron Hunt's single sparked Los Angeles past first-place St. Louis 6-4 and Philadelphia trounced San Francisco 8-0.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant had a no-hitter through seven innings in the second game at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it up with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth.

Ribant Chased

The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice fly and Lou Johnson's steal of home.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The veteran right-hander allowed San Francisco just four hits while ending the Giants' winning streak at six games.

The Phillies iced the game with five runs in the fourth inning.

Terry Finds New Career in Golf

NEW YORK (AP) — "I really thought I could make it, but when the Mets don't want you..."

So the baseball career of Ralph Terry, a 23-game winner and World Series star with the New York Yankees in 1962, ended, perhaps prematurely, at the age of 31.

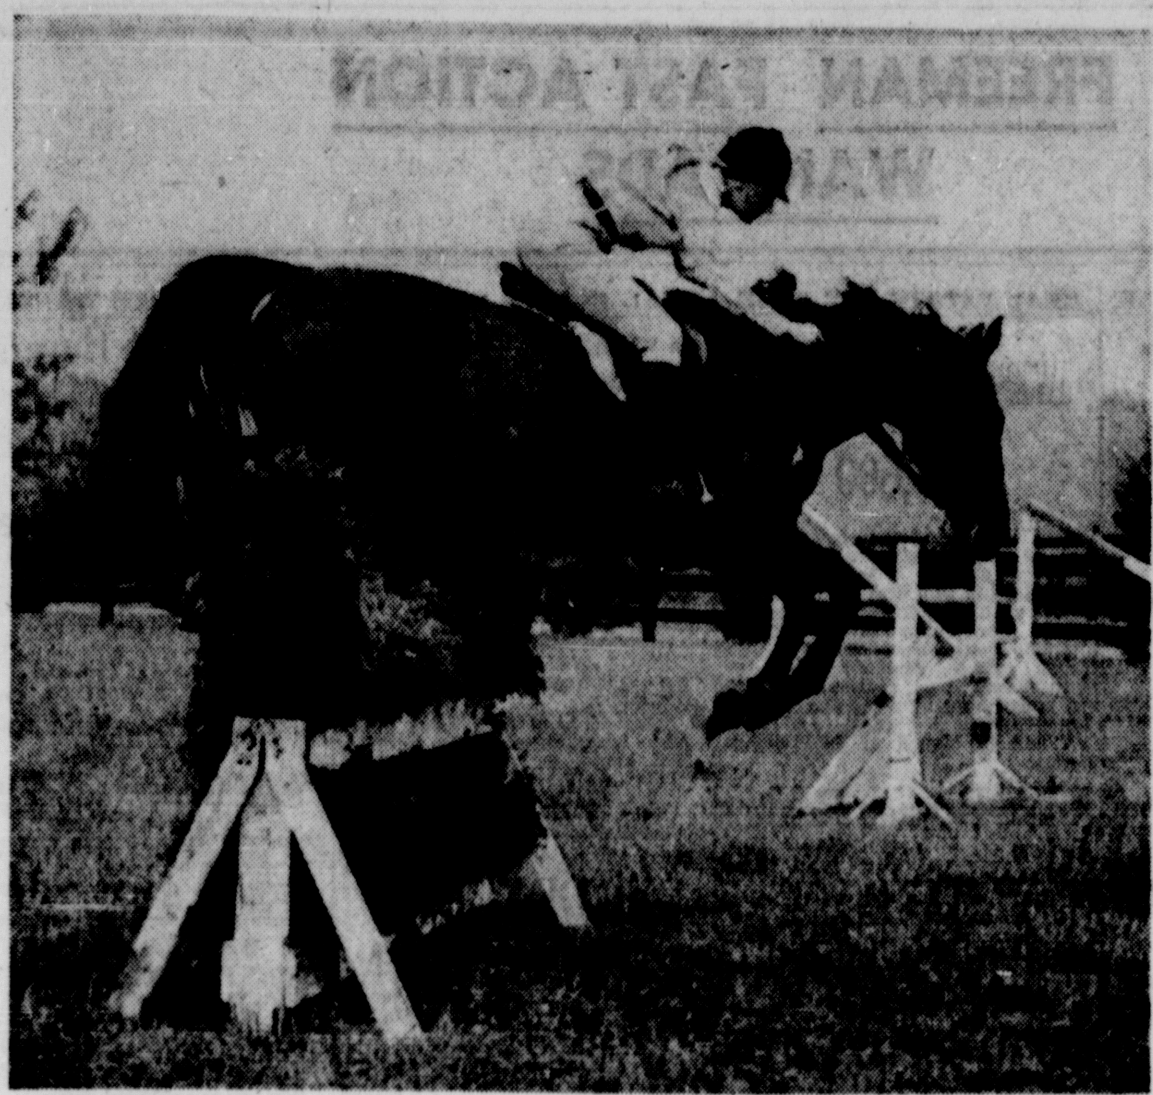

"But when one door closes, sometimes another door opens," said the right-hander who won 107 major league games and two more in the Series. Another door has opened for him.

The lanky native of Big Cabin, Okla., has made the unusual jump from major league ball player to golf pro at the new Rostic Golf Club in nearby Mendham, N.J.

Terry teaches golf, sells its products and publicizes the club and on Aug. 28, he will be the host pro to a $10,000 pro-am event, "my first real money tournament."

Cubs' Losing Streak: Never Ending Thing

By ED SCHUYLER JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh, in the first game of a double-header Monday at Wrigley Field—where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed—as part of a double-header Wednesday.

In the only other scheduled National League games, both at night, Ron Hunt's single sparked Los Angeles past first-place St. Louis 6-4 and Philadelphia trounced San Francisco 8-0.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant had a no-hitter through seven innings in the second game at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it off with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth.

Ribant Chased
The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice off reliever Al McBean, and Lee Thomas brought in a run with a groundout.

Juan Pizarro then took over for McBean, and Billy Williams greeted him with a single on a 3-2 pitch, tying the game.

Manny Sanguillen doubled home two Pittsburgh runs in the second inning and Al Luplow, who collected six hits for the day, singled home another in the eighth.

The Pirates used the ninth-inning rally to win the first game.

Chuck Hartenstein had held the Pirates at bay since taking over for Bob Shaw in the second inning, and the Cubs led 3-2 going into the ninth.

The relief pitcher then started Chicago's downfall by committing a throwing error on Maury Wills' slow roller. Roberto Clement tied the game by singling with men on first and second, and Manny Mota put the Pirates ahead with a sacrifice fly off Rob Gardner, who replaced Hartenstein.

Donn Clendenon clinched it with a two-run homer.

With the Cards-Dodgers game tied 3-3, two out and men on first and second in the ninth, Hunt singled in one run. Another scored when center fielder Curt Flood bobbled the ball, and Hunt raced home when second baseman Phil Gagliano threw the relay past third.

The Cardinals, who were on a five-game winning streak, tied it in the eighth when Mike Shannon doubled home Orlando Cepeda, who had singled. Los Angeles had taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the sixth on a sacrifice fly and Lou Johnson's steal of home.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The veteran right-hander allowed San Francisco just four hits while ending the Giants' winning streak at six games.

The Phillies iced the game with five runs in the fourth inning.

Terry Finds New Career in Golf

NEW YORK (AP)—"I really thought I could make it, but when the Mets don't want you..."

So the baseball career of Ralph Terry, a 23-game winner and World Series star with the New York Yankees in 1962, ended, perhaps prematurely, at the age of 31.

"But when one door closes, sometimes another door opens," said the right-hander who won 107 major league games and two more in the Series. Another door has opened for him.

The lanky native of Big Cabin, Okla., has made the unusual jump from major league ball player to golf pro at the new Roxit Golf Club in nearby Mendham, N.J.

Terry teaches golf, sells its products and publicizes the club and on Aug. 28, he will be the host pro to a $10,000 pro-am event, "my first real money tournament."

First Reaction—Shock
"I was in a state of shock for a couple of weeks when the New York Mets let me go this spring because baseball was such a part of my life. But I understood. They had to make room for some younger players."

"I think I had a few years left in baseball, but what would it have proved hanging around. I'm 31 now. Why wait until I'm 35 or 40?"

Golf isn't new to Terry, who won the baseball players' tournament three times and finished second three times. In fact, it was indirectly baseball that got him started thinking seriously about golf.

"I fractured a hip in the accident after the 1957 season and they had me in traction for a time. I couldn't run in spring training of 1958, so I started playing golf to get my legs in shape."

"I shoot par now on our par 70 course."

"Going on the tour is something else. I've got to get my game ironed out before even thinking about it."

Area Swimmers In Junior Meet

Several of Ulster County's leading junior swimmers will compete in the annual junior swim meet Sunday at Delano Hitch swimming pool in Newburgh.

The group includes Nancy Plunkett, Craig Murray, Steve Lupton, Candy Canning in the Intermediate division (13-15). Entered in the Senior division (15-17) are Charles Plunkett, Gene Gruner, Linda Coogan and Jenny Murray.

During the intermission, a water show will be presented by Buster Crabbe, Olympic Gold Medal winner and charter member of the Swimming Hall of Fame. Crabbe will also be guest speaker for the awards banquet dinner at 7 p.m.

Assisting on the committee are Robert Murray and Peter Benitez, swim coach at Williams Lake.

Browns' Williams Traded to Giants

CLEVELAND (AP)—Linebacker Sid Williams, one of five Cleveland Browns players who held out from reporting to training camp since July 22, was traded to the New York Giants for a draft choice or a player to be named later.

Tackle John Brown was traded last week to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Returning to the Browns for the season are halfback Leroy Kelly, who last year had the best rushing average and the most touchdowns in the league, and guard John Wooden, who started in last year's Pro Bowl game.

Defensive back Mike Howell said he will join the Browns in San Francisco this weekend.

Yearling Sales Open at Saratoga

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—The big money will be in the buying, not the betting, today as Fasig-Tipton Co. opens its 47th annual yearling sales.

The feature race, the $10,000 Auction Sales Plate for two-year-olds, is open to horses sold in North American auctions in 1966 or prior to March 1, 1967.

Eight are entered in the 5½ furlong event.

Horse experts predict that this year's four-day horse auction could eclipse marks set last year when 237 yearlings were sold for $4,629,700—an average of $19,535 per horse.

The highest price ever paid for a horse at the Saratoga sales was $94,000 in 1964. The horse was Bold Legend and the buyer David Shear.

Horses purchased in the sales history include Kauai King, Man o' War, Battlefield and Globemaster, all big money winners. They include also Super-Charged, bought in 1961 for $21,000 and now an outsider's pony.

Dear Abby

Dean States Case on Drugs

DEAR ABBY: I am with a letter to the editor of the you all the way on your stand Keene, N. H., Evening Sentinel against marijuana and LSD. Don't let anyone tell that the best colleges and universities are indifferent to its use by their students. I am inclosing MUNSONVILLE READER: DEAR READER: Thank you for your fine suggestion I agree, the letter is worth republishing. Here it is:

"The dean's office has been repeatedly pressed by members of the freshman class for a statement of the college's administrative position with respect to the use of drugs including marijuana and LSD. If it will help anyone, I am pleased to clarify our position. As anyone bright enough to be at Harvard knows perfectly well, possession of, or distribution of marijuana and LSD are strictly against the law, and taking the drugs involves users in psychological dangers and contacts with the criminal underworld. The college is prepared to take serious disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal, against any student found to be involved in the use or distribution of illegal and dangerous drugs. In sum, if a student is stupid enough to misuse his time here fooling around with illegal and dangerous drugs, our view is that he should leave college and make room for people prepared to take good advantage of a college opportunity. "OFFICE OF THE DEAN: HARVARD"

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Smokes Pot," who insists it is not dangerous. I recently did a science report on "pot" and to drive home my point, I'll quote from the Encyclopedia Britannica: "Marijuana intoxication usually leads to mental and moral degeneration. It releases inhibitions, impairing judgement, and causing extensive distortion of time and space. It can make its victims entirely unaccountable for their actions and may cause them to commit violent crimes. Many emotionally unstable persons known to be associated with major crimes, prove to be marijuana users. Any existing character weaknesses can be magnified by its use. Sign This KNOWS BETTER IN N. C. Getting the Bid at the Right Price

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is an easy way for South to get to three no-trump with today's hand. He just opens with one no-trump and his partner raises him. South has the points for an no-trump opening but it is usually poor tactics to open one no-trump with a 5-4-2-2 distribution.

North can get there just about as easily after the club opening and the spade overcall if he bids one no-trump but North will have a lot of worries against a spade opening. With North as declarer, spades are only stopped once. A spade lead up to South as declarer produces two spade stoppers.

In any event North's raise to two clubs is superior to a one no-trump call. After East bids two diamonds, South can still bid two no-trump and hope for a diamond lead or for something in spades in the North hand but two hearts is his correct bid.

West's three-diamond bid keeps pressure on North. His two-club bid was a good one and he feels justified in bidding again and certainly can afford to bid four clubs but North had wanted to bid no-trump at his first time and North knows that nine tricks are enough for game at no-trump while 11 are needed in clubs.

North can have his cake and eat it, too, if he uses a delayed cue bid so North bids three spades.

This bid can't be interpreted as a slam try. North only bid two clubs at his first chance to act. It must tell South that North is willing to play at four clubs but if South can stop diamonds, North thinks that three no-trump is the right place to play the hand. South is delighted to bid three no-trump and has no trouble collecting his nine tricks.

Gunsmoke Going 'Family'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —

"Gunsmoke," grandfather of television's "adult Westerns," will start its 13th season as what the industry euphemistically calls "a family show."

The switch is occasioned by

CBS' moving the show from a late Saturday evening spot to an early Monday evening show.

That means that, while the bulk of the old "Gunsmoke" audience was presumed to be grownups who preferred to stay home Saturday nights, the new audience will be heavily laced with small fry. It is devoutly believed in televisionland that children control television dials

as long as they are up.

Easier on Kitty

Producer John Mantley insists that the change, with one exception, will not affect the series or its scripts.

"The exception will be that

Kitty will never be manhandled," Mantley said. "She may be roughed up now and then by villains and outlaws but it will never go beyond that."

One of the big surprises last spring came when CBS announced the end of the series—a decision which shocked the producer and cast as much as it did the Western's fans. The series had always been a steady but not stellar performer in the ratings. At the time it was reported that the show was being dropped because its appeal was primarily to older people residing outside of cities.

Almost immediate reversal of the death sentence, Mantley believes, was dictated by public response to the cancellation—including the threats of some Midwestern television stations to sever their ties with CBS. Now, with a new position in the network schedule—Mondays at 7:30 p.m.—the producer thinks that the old show has several more years of life in it.

Jerry Lewis is the NBC star who this year is not available to the television press. Last year it was "The Monkees."

It was decided early last season to put the newly formed singing quartet off limits to the press after the boys had been a little rude to some interviewers.

They still are not available except under strictly controlled conditions.

Poughkeepsie, Newburgh Salaries Higher

Comparative Figures Show Local Police, Firemen Shortchanged

By RAY TYSON
Moneywise, compared to their Poughkeepsie and Newburgh counterparts, Kingston police and firemen get a pretty skinny slice of the cheese.
Comparative figures indicate on both low and high grades, this city's police-firemen pay scale averages several hundred dollars a year less than either of the other two cities. What has developed can only be termed a "salary gap."
Starts at $5,100
Today, a rookie cop joining the Kingston force will start at $5,100. An apprentice fireman will receive the same earnings. After 10 years of duty, both will be receiving their maximum pay—$6,500.

Across the river in Poughkeepsie, two men desiring to follow the identical vocations will begin their careers at $5,850, a difference of $750 a year, or $62 per month more.
A decade's service will net them $7,150. However, there is an additional incentive. Fifteen years with the department will jump the salary an extra $200 in yearly pay.
Yet Poughkeepsie police and firemen are troubled. They claim these are difficult times. A man must scrape to keep a wife and kids, meet house and car payments, on a meager $7,350 or less.

In Newburgh the story is similar. First year men start at $5,500 and at the end of 10 can expect $6,700.
In fact the only appreciable area where salaries are fairly uniform between the three cities is the detective divisions, or officer's corps. Here payrolls are constant, ranging between $7,600 to $8,500. Outside this area Kingston sits on the floor of the salary totem pole.
For example, Kingston police and fire chiefs earn $9,500, but Poughkeepsie's two heads make $11,000 and Newburgh's department leaders earn $11,684.
On the surface perhaps these differences can be lightly brushed-off. In Poughkeepsie's case their budget is nearly twice the size of Kingston's planning estimates.

All things considered the three cities numerically fit the same size pattern. Kingston sprouts a population of approximately 28,000. Poughkeepsie is listed around 36,000 and Newburgh rates a pretty even 26,000.
The Kingston police force currently numbers 52 strong, or one patrolman for every 539 persons. Poughkeepsie stands at 87 or one policeman for every 413 persons.
On Short End
Carefully scrutinized, the ratio leaves Kingston residents on the short end. Bluntly interpreted, Kingston's force is understaffed.

These figures, however, are misleading. Kingston's budget is $4,120,630, yet $820,464 is allocated to the police and fire departments.
On the other hand Poughkeepsie's budget totals $8,052,990, nearly double ours, with $1,398,316 going to police and fire.
In other words Kingston allots one-fifth of the budget to police and fire while Poughkeepsie roughly gives only one-seventh of their budget to those two departments. It would be less than fair to say Kingston has been remiss in their duty to the two departments.
'Must Go Up'
Practically every official interviewed agreed the salaries must be increased. Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan explained, "The salaries must go up. They will go up."

"Next year we will start men off at $5,300 and beef-up the force to 61. Today's dollar value is steadily decreasing. A man needs at least $100 a week to take home after taxes."
Police Commissioner William B. Dean concurred. He said, "The cost of living is going up and I feel the men should get a raise."
But all the feelings in the world won't close the "salary gap" until the crux of the problem is attacked, and Kingston's problem is too low a budget and a faulty tax base.

Poughkeepsie's budget is sustained by a one percent sales tax. In addition there are real estate taxes, utility fees and additional revenues for acquiring monies.
Kingston has only a real estate tax. There are no fees, no sales tax, no means to tax businesses. As a result the city can only support a meager budget and the meager budget inevitably harms those who serve the city.
It would seem in light of today's pressing problems, when the services of police and firemen are in more demand than ever before, that city officials would take a long and hard look at the financial plight of their police and firemen.

GOP Backs Reapportion Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Constitutional Convention's Republican minority leaders abruptly switched signals today to urge GOP support for the Democrats' new commission approach to reapportionment.
When the Democrats unveiled their plan Monday, Republicans were caught by surprise and their initial action was hostile.
Up to that point, it had appeared that the rival party was intent on preserving the Legislature's power to redistrict itself, as well as seats in Congress.
But a last-minute amendment was introduced proposing to take the Legislature completely out of the picture and entrust the job to a five-member, bipartisan commission.
At the request of GOP Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges, Convention President Anthony J. Travia postponed action on the amendment until today.
Overnight Switch
Brydges growled and grumbled about "diluting the power of the Legislature," inviting the conclusion that Republicans would oppose the commission plan.
Overnight, however, the GOP leadership concluded that a commission system could afford the Republicans a better opportunity for favorable reapportionment than allowing the Legislature to do it.
Accordingly, informed sources said, the Republican high command decided to request rank-and-file delegate support for the plan at a late-morning conference of the GOP minority.
Meanwhile, in another development, the convention's Education Committee voted to require the state government to provide free college educations for New York residents.
The action represented a major triumph for Travia, who espoused such a policy last month and provoked a flurry of criticism from prominent Republicans, including Gov. Rockefeller.
Among other effects, a free-college system would require removal of tuition charges from the State University system. Rockefeller and other Republicans say this income is needed to finance expansion of the university.

As envisioned by the committee, private institutions would be brought into the free-college plan, either by giving increased financial assistance to the students or by paying grants directly to the colleges.
Would Enlarge Senate
The reapportionment dispute flared as the Democratic-controlled convention opened debate on a new article setting forth the powers and functions of the Legislature.
Among other things, the article would enlarge the Senate from 57 to 60 members, keep the Assembly at 150 members, continue the legislators' terms at two years and provide a new expense account system for them.
There was little disagreement over these proposals.
Segments of the Democratic majority and Republican minority objected, however, to the article's reapportionment section.
As originally drawn, it would have entrusted the job to the Legislature, with a stipulation that a commission would take over if the Legislature failed to perform.
A group of Democrats argued that the Legislature should be relieved of all responsibility for reapportionment — that a commission would be more objective in drawing election district lines.
Republicans protested because the governor no longer would have a veto check on the final product.
In an attempt to obviate Democratic complaints, Travia switched completely to a commission plan and won endorsement for it at a closed conference of the Democratic majority.

Majority Leader Moses M. Weinstein offered the plan as an amendment to the main article. It would provide for a five-member, bi-partisan commission, with four members to be appointed by Democratic and Republican leaders of the Legislature and the fifth by the Court of Appeals.
Skeptical at First
Republicans were skeptical at first but later concluded they would have stronger representation on such a commission than they would if they ever found themselves totally in the minority in the Legislature and thus powerless to impede a Democratic-drawn apportionment.
At present, Democrats control the Assembly, while Republicans command the Senate.
The surprise amendment drew caustic criticism from Brydges, who denounced the maneuver as evidence that Democrats were flaunting their majority muscle in the convention.
"I now serve warning," he told Travia, "that unless there is some evidence of resurgent non-partisanship, I'm going to have to take the same hard line we see in the Senate and Assembly."
Brydges, Travia and Weinstein hold the highest leadership posts in the Legislature, as well as in the convention.

Illicit Operations Probed In Death of Prosecutor

JEFFERSON, Ga. (AP) — Investigators dug into car theft operations and illegal liquor traffic today in a hunt for the assassin whose dynamite bomb snuffed out the racketeering career of a state prosecutor.
The booby-trap killing of Solicitor General Floyd G. Hoard, who had led a crime clean-up drive, shocked community leaders into marshaling their own citizens war on organized crime in the Northeast Georgia area where car stealing and bootlegging flourish.

On Way to Jury
Hoard, 40, father of four, died Monday morning when he turned the ignition switch of his car and detonated six to 12 sticks of dynamite wired under the hood. He was on his way to present evidence to a grand jury prior to criminal court next week.
"If it was intended as a threat, I'm going to double my efforts," said Judge Mark Donahoo of Superior Court, elected as a reform candidate with Hoard nearly three years ago. "We have got to try to eliminate these brutalities, these hoodlum tactics."
Authorities and townspeople agreed that Hoard's crusading crime fight had left a multitude of enemies. Joe Hoard said he had urged his younger brother to take precautions against a car booby trap last May—after Floyd Hoard brought up the subject.
"He came to me, brought it up and said this thing might happen," the brother said. But Floyd Hoard did not follow through on the advice to place strips of tape on the hood and doors of his car.

Similar to '66 Case
The bomb murder was similar to a dynamite explosion that injured Martin Page, an auto salvage operator at Greenville, S.C., more than a year ago. Greenville police then were investigating auto theft operations in Georgia and Detective J.C. Gillespie said the ring was involved with Page.
Northeast Georgia long has been a center of auto theft and bootlegging racketeering. In 1964, when more than 7,500 cars were stolen in Georgia, three policemen were shot to death near Lawrenceville, about 20 miles from Jefferson, and the slayings were linked to car theft operations. Two men were convicted of the killings.
Residents of this town of 2,000 about 60 miles northeast of Atlanta must "get themselves together...and get the criminal element cleaned up," said Herman Buffington, publisher of the weekly Jackson Herald.

Poughkeepsie, Newburgh Salaries Higher

Comparative Figures Show Local Police, Firemen Shortchanged

By RAY TYSON
Moneywise, compared to their Poughkeepsie and Newburgh counterparts, Kingston police and firemen get a pretty skinny slice of the cheese.
Comparative figures indicate on both low and high grades, this city's police-firemen pay scale averages several hundred dollars a year less than either of the other two cities. What has developed can only be termed a "salary gap."
Starts at $5,100
Today, a rookie cop joining the Kingston force will start at $5,100. An apprentice fireman will receive the same earnings. After 10 years of duty, both will be receiving their maximum pay—$8,500.

Across the river in Poughkeepsie, two men desiring to follow the identical vocations will begin their careers at $5,850, a difference of $750 a year, or $62 per month more.
A decade's service will net them $7,150. However, there is an additional incentive. Fifteen years with the department will jump the salary an extra $200 in yearly pay.
Yet Poughkeepsie police and firemen are troubled. They claim these are difficult times. A man must scrape to keep a wife and kids, meet house and car payments, on a meager $7,350 or less.

In Newburgh the story is similar. First year men start at $5,500 and at the end of 10 can expect $6,700.
In fact the only appreciable area where salaries are fairly uniform between the three cities is the detective divisions, or officer's corps. Here payrolls are constant, ranging between $7,600 to $8,500. Outside this area Kingston sits on the floor of the salary totem pole.
For example, Kingston police and fire chiefs earn $9,500, but Poughkeepsie's two heads make $11,000 and Newburgh's department leaders earn $11,684.
On the surface perhaps these differences can be lightly brushed-off. In Poughkeepsie's case their budget is nearly twice the size of Kingston's planning estimates.

All things considered the three cities numerically fit the same size pattern. Kingston sprouts a population of approximately 28,000. Poughkeepsie is listed around 36,000 and Newburgh rates a pretty even 26,000.
The Kingston police force currently numbers 52 strong, or one patrolman for every 539 persons. Poughkeepsie stands at 87 or one policeman for every 413 persons.
On Short End
Carefully scrutinized, the ratio leaves Kingston residents on the short end. Bluntly interpreted, Kingston's force is understaffed.

These figures, however, are misleading. Kingston's budget is $4,120,630, yet $820,464 is allocated to the police and fire departments.
On the other hand Poughkeepsie's budget totals $8,052,990, nearly double ours, with $1,398,316 going to police and fire.
In other words Kingston allots one-fifth of the budget to police and fire while Poughkeepsie roughly gives only one-seventh of their budget to those two departments. It would be less than fair to say Kingston has been remiss in their duty to the two departments.
'Must Go Up'
Practically every official interviewed agreed the salaries must be increased. Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan explained, "The salaries must go up. They will go up."

"Next year we will start men off at $5,300 and beef-up the force to 61. Today's dollar value is steadily decreasing. A man needs at least $100 a week to take home after taxes."
Police Commissioner William B. Dean concurred. He said, "The cost of living is going up and I feel the men should get a raise."

Explains Defection

MONTREAL, N.C. (AP) — Differences between generations and classes are sharper than racial barriers, a church researcher said Monday night in trying to explain the defection of many young adults from churches.
Lyle E. Schaller, director of the regional church planning office in Cleveland, told the National Ministers Conference that research indicates "we're just not reaching the group that's having children—the young adults."
He said there has been an average 30 per cent drop in child baptism in most churches while the nation's birth rate has dropped 13 per cent.

GOP Backs Reapportion Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Constitutional Convention's Republican minority leaders abruptly switched signals today to urge GOP support for the Democrats' new commission-approach to reapportionment.
When the Democrats unveiled their plan Monday, Republicans were caught by surprise and their initial action was hostile.
